Water supply pollution fear as 'fracking' ruled safe by govt experts

By Marijke Cox
marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

DOMESTIC water supplies face contamination, claim campaigners angry at a government report that has declared 'fracking' safe.

They argue that recommendations by a panel of experts could lead to the "dangerous" technique of hydraulic fracturing being used to extract gas at sites in the east and west of the county.

In a report for the Government published this week, experts said the method of shale gas extraction – which triggered two earth tremors near Blackpool last year – should continue as long as stringent measures are in place.

Two sites have been highlighted in Kent as potential areas for exploratory drilling: one at Woodnesborough, near Sandwich; and the other at Cowden, near Sevenoaks.

There are fears if bore holes are drilled it will lead to the eventual use of fracking, which involves blasting water and chemicals underground at high pressure to break apart rocks and release shale gas – a cheap option of ensuring energy supplies.

Experts argued the method carried only a "very small" risk of causing earthquakes.

It is likely to pave the way for further use of fracking, albeit with a set of government regulations in place, including seismic monitoring.

But dismayed campaigners said earthquakes were not the main concern, arguing that pumping chemicals into the ground could contaminate water supplies.

Kent Green Party spokesman Steve Dawe said: "An ordinary individual cannot randomly pollute ground or water

Trio deny murder after fire killed three generations of same family

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

THE trial of three people accused of killing a mother, her child and her father in a house fire has started.

Used car salesman Danai Muhammadi, 24, his girlfriend, unemployed Emma Smith, 21, and doorman Farhad Mahmud, 35, are charged with murdering Muhammadi's estranged wife Melissa Crook, 20, their 15-month-old son Noah and Melissa's father Mark, 48.

They are also charged with the attempted murder of Melissa's brother Bohdan, 21, and her mum Amanda, who both escaped the fire at the property in Chatham Hill, Chatham, in the early hours of September 10, 2011.

Smith, of Barley Lea, Stoke Aldermoor, Coventry, has an additional charge of conspiracy to commit arson with intent to endanger life.

All three deny the charges.

Muhammadi, of Britannia Street, Coventry, Smith and Mahmud, of Kensington House, Fernhill Road, Maidstone, spoke only to confirm their names at Maidstone Crown Court on the first day of the trial.

It is expected to last four weeks with phone records, CCTV images, automatic number plate recognition images and more than 70 prosecution witnesses presented to the jury.

The trial will be presided over by High Court Judge Sir Nigel Sweeney.

The prosecution team is being led by barrister Mark Dennis QC, who has worked on high-profile cases including the Securitas robbery and the case of M25 rapist Antoni Imiela.

SAD LOSS:

20-year-old Melissa Crook and her baby son Noah died in the house fire which engulfed her home last year. Her father Mark also died from burns he received in the blaze which was allegedly caused by Melissa's ex-husband Danai Muhammadi and two accomplices

Melissa Crook and her son died at the scene of the fire in September last year.

Bodhan Crook escaped the property by jumping out of a first-floor window, breaking his hands and feet.

Melissa's parents Amanda and Mark escaped the property, but her father was left critically ill with severe burns and died six days later.

Muhammadi and Melissa married in Rochester in 2009, and moved to Coventry. The pair split up a few months later and she moved back in with her family in Kent with son Noah.

NEWS IN BRIEF

➔ Man denies cat swing

A MAN has denied swinging a cat by its tail in a street. Riain Richards, 20, of Clements Road, Ramsgate, pleaded not guilty to causing unnecessary suffering to a cat on October 29 last year. The incident involving the two-year-old cat, Mowgli, allegedly took place outside the Camden Arms pub in La Belle Alliance Square, Ramsgate. Richards appeared at Canterbury Magistrates' Court, and was released on unconditional bail until a trial date yet to be set.

➔ Teen lied over sex attack

A POLICE investigation into a serious sexual assault in Ashford has been closed after the teenager admitted she made up the allegation. The 15-year-old, from Ashford, told police she was assaulted on February 29 by a stranger. Her allegation led to an investigation by police.

The teen was interviewed under caution on suspicion of wasting police time. After admitting she made up the incident, she received a formal reprimand.

➔ Web porn threat to kids

CANTERBURY MP Julian Brazier is calling for more to be done to prevent children from accessing hardcore pornographic material on the internet.

He was one of 17 cross-party MPs who conducted an Independent Parliamentary Inquiry into online child protection, and said: "Our inquiry found that it is currently just too easy for children to access pornography on the internet, as well as websites depicting violence – and even promoting self-harm and anorexia in a good light. The Government should act on this."

Boost for towns hit by Pfizer as KCC agrees more high-speed funds

HIGH-speed services to Deal and Sandwich will be funded for at least another year by Kent County Council, providing another boost to the area following the closure of Pfizer.

A formal announcement is due from County Hall, but cabinet member for transport Cllr Bryan Sweetland confirmed to KoS that the authority would help subsidise the Southeastern service potentially up to 2014, when the rail franchise is renewed.

Cllr Sweetland said the number of season ticket holders using the high-speed link in the east Kent towns had grown dramatically, and this was expected to increase even more.

"We've seen passenger numbers rise from a dozen to more than 100 and that's going to grow to a couple of hundred," he said.

"The initial driver for us to subsidise the service was to support the regeneration in light of the Pfizer withdrawal.

"Confidence is growing and we took the decision to continue. I've been working with campaign group Trains4Deal and there are few things we need to tweak with the service."

The subsidy will be reduced from last year due to the increase in season ticket holders using the daily fast link, which has three trains in the morning and two returning from St Pancras in the evening.

David Foley, chief executive of the Thanet and East Kent Chamber of Commerce and the Dover District Chamber, said the business community would benefit.

GOOD NEWS: More passengers are using service

"I'm encouraged by this support from Kent County Council," he said.

"What happened last year at Pfizer was a shock; we knew it could happen, but it happened so quickly."

He said good rail links were a crucial part of encouraging business and investment to the area and were used as part of the bid for funding and support from the Government.

South Thanet MP Laura Sandys said the high-speed service cut 45 minutes off a journey which previously lasted more than two hours.

"Over the next year, I am hopeful that businesses considering setting up in the region – particularly on the Pfizer site [in Sandwich] – will recognise that east Kent is not only a superb place for their employees to live, but also within easy reach of London," she said.

Airport plans would need 'a city the size of Manchester'

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

AVIATION experts have poured doubt on the feasibility of a Thames Estuary airport, adding further fuel to the fight against the controversial plans.

Chief executive of Birmingham International Airport Paul Kehoe argued that a single hub airport could not answer Britain's aviation needs, and Britain's air control service NATS (National Air Traffic Services) said the estuary was the "worst spot" to locate an airport.

World-renowned architect Lord Foster last year unveiled ambitious plans for a £50bn hub airport on the Isle of Grain, including a rail line and Thames crossing and involving the closure of Heathrow.

It followed an idea by London Mayor Boris Johnson, who suggested building a floating hub airport on reclaimed land in the estuary.

Writing for the weekly newsletter for the group An Executive View of British Travel, aviation expert Mr Kehoe said: "Heathrow already handles 70 million passengers a year. The Department for Transport estimates Britain will need space for 125 million more a year by 2030. There is no way that Heathrow, even with a third runway, can possibly answer this demand.

"And an estuary airport would require a new town the size of Manchester to cater for the workers and their families – all in a region already cited as needing five new reservoirs."

He demanded the Government's upcoming aviation review first consider how best to use existing resources such as airports in Birmingham, Liverpool and Manchester.

His comments came just as the boss of Britain's air control service NATS, Richard Deakin, voiced concern over the feasibility of the estuary plans by architect Lord Foster.

He said it was the "worst spot" to put an airport, arguing that it was directly under the convergence of arrival and departure flight paths for four of London's five airports. He said the thousands of birds in the area were a threat to planes.

Leader of Medway Council, Cllr Rodney Chambers said Lord Foster had failed to do research into the location.

"It was clear last year he hadn't done his homework as he had placed his airport on top of the LNG plant – which stores one fifth of the UK's gas – and the power station there," he said. "It was obvious he had not actually left his office and travelled from London to have a look before releasing his fantasy pie in the sky scheme.

"Now it seems he didn't even bother talking to air traffic control body, NATS, which beggars belief.

"After all, their chief executive says there couldn't be a worse spot for a hub airport than the Thames estuary."

Cllr Chambers said if Lord Foster's proposal – which involves shutting Heathrow – gets off the ground, the airport would carry twice as many passengers as Heathrow.

He said: "With that in mind, I welcome Paul Kehoe's comments that the infrastructure needed for such an airport, including for more than 100,000 people and their families to move here would be unsustainable.

"The Government's consultation is due to start this summer and Medway Council, Kent County Council and other councils across Kent and Essex, as well as MPs, and the RSPB have already said they will put forward a strong argument that an estuary airport is a non-starter. I would urge others to do the same."

Lord Foster said: "We believe the economic case for the Thames hub is compelling as Britain is already losing out to expanding European hubs. Our proposal comprehensively addresses the infrastructure needed to maximise the advantages of a new airport."

'Daft' EU law leads to wine giveaway

AFTER importing almost two tonnes of special grapes from Argentina, a top Kent winemaker has been told that because of bizarre EU rules, he can't sell the resulting bottles of red – so now it's being given away.

Chapel Down in Tenterden is known for its still and sparkling wines made from grapes grown in the Garden of England.

But boss Frazer Thompson is being made to give away the bottles because he used grapes from outside the EU. And even then, he is not allowed to even call it wine.

Mr Thompson went to Argentina to help harvest the Malbec grapes. He said he wanted to experience a new grape and technique and put an English spin on one of the world's most popular wines. The result was 1,300 bottles, worth £15 each, that no-one is allowed to buy. They are labelled World Malbec Day An English Salute. And in small letters below, it reads: "Publicity use only, not for sale."

At the vineyard, Mr Thompson said: "Daft is one of the words I have used. It is extremely frustrating when you have legislation which means this wine, which is made from grapes grown in Argentina, and made in to a wine here at Chapel Down, is not allowed to be called a wine.

"It is not a wine – it is in fact an 'alcoholic fruit-based beverage from produce sourced outside the European Union' which doesn't look great on a label. The situation is massively frustrating."

Some of the bottles will go to British restaurants owned by the Gaucho vineyards where the grapes originally came from, and some are being given away to customers who buy other bottles of Chapel Down. The rest will go to shareholders, staff, friends, and used at wine-tastings.

➔ Gills police row resolved

GILLINGHAM FC's game against League Two leaders Swindon Town this weekend was back on after a stand-off between the club and police over policing costs was resolved. It was feared the game would be played behind closed doors after Medway Council issued a prohibition notice that prevented fans from attending the match until Gills paid for the policing bill. It is a huge game for both sides as victory will see Swindon crowned League Two champions.

➔ Fish scheme dismissed

A GOVERNMENT pilot scheme allowing some inshore fishermen to catch their allocated quota of fish when they want, instead of on the current prescribed timetable, will not solve the plight of the county's fishermen says Kent Lib Dem Euro MP Sharon Bowles. She said: "While the issue of discards – the practice of throwing 'surplus' fish dead overboard – has made a splash in the media, local fishermen are still suffering because they can't catch enough fish to make a proper living."

➔ Free opera screenings

OPERA lovers in Dover are in for a treat when the Big Screen shows performances from London's Royal Opera House next month.

La bohème is on Thursday, May 17, at 7.30pm and Falstaff is on Wednesday, May 30 at 7.30pm in Market Square. Royal Opera House creative director Deborah Bull said: "These summer big screens, now in their 25th year, are a highlight of our performing season."

ENTERTAINMENT

Festivals promising summer sounds for every age and taste

By Chris Britcher

chris.britcher@archant.co.uk

IT is perhaps fitting that some of the world's most successful ageing rock stars will be pushed into the Garden of England this summer to soak up the warming sunshine of adulation.

And before they head off for a well-earned snooze, there will be the small case of receiving a cheque big enough to buy an oast house or two before they are driven at speed out of the county.

Because this summer the music festival scene in Kent is dominated by stars of a certain age. Not, of course, that there is any problem with that. After all, those with longevity have straddled generations for good reason. As organisers of one annual event know only too well.

The Hop Farm Festival has quickly established itself as the county's big-hitter. The debate over whether it is the county's best is for another day, but with veteran no-nonsense promoter Vince Power at the helm, it is not afraid to splash the cash in cornering the 'legends' market.

Thus for the three days it occupies the Pad-dock Wood tourist attraction between June 29 and July 1 it will bring the likes of Bob Dylan, 70; Ray Davies, 67; Peter Gabriel, 62; and even Bruce Forsyth – a mere 84. And while the likes of Suede and Primal Scream are sprinkled into the mix, they are not going to drag the average age down that dramatically. It is, however, going to drag in a lot of folk who come armed with that all important 'disposable income'.

They come, they bring their kids, they spend lots of money. In this day and age it is the festival bean counter's dream.

Which is indeed what they did last year when it served up the 80s heroes of Morrissey and Prince, in addition to The Eagles, to entertain the sun-blessed crowds.

It's not worth contemplating that both solo performers – at 53 and 52 respectively – are young enough to be Dylan's kids.

Among those Power had been hoping to sign up for the festival was Leonard Cohen. But when the dates didn't suit they came up with a compromise.

The Canadian singer-songwriter is set to play two 10,000-capacity outdoor shows, all-seated, at the Hop Farm in September.

At 77, Cohen will certainly not feel out of place as he follows in the footsteps of the summer three-day event.

The music promoter explained: "We have an agreement with the owners of the Hop Farm that we can hire the venue out and Leonard Cohen was a great opportunity to do just that. The A Day at the Hop Farm proved ticket sales were strong and so we're set to add an extra date."

But watching pensioners tread the boards? Well, it's not very rock 'n' roll is it?

For that we have to look elsewhere. And the county's other major festival – the critically acclaimed Lounge on the Farm.

Last year it did what rock music really ought to do and upset the neighbours.

As a result, the police called for its licence on the working Merton Farm (the cow shed venue

Fortunately for all concerned, rock's trademark middle finger was not deployed and instead everyone got around the table and acted like adults. The result? A nice new licence and a string of conditions which should ensure much fun is still had, while those living within earshot of the site itself, don't spend the weekend tutting.

Unlike the Hop Farm, Lounge is a far more contemporary affair and one which embraces its roots. Much of the food and drink is locally produced, and the atmosphere is more village fete

TUNE IN:

Being 'too old' to attend a festival is no longer an excuse which carries any weight given Kent's varied line-up this summer, including Bob Dylan (centre) than anything more challenging. It's a hard one to dislike. Unless, it would appear, you live next door to it.

Headliners for its July outing include Emeli Sande, The Wombats and The Charlatans. By the time 70s funksters Chic and Dexys Midnight Runners have been added in, it seeks to cater for several generations, underlining its 'eclectic' music line-up tag.

Meanwhile, it would seem the early 1990s indie/Britpop revival is just around the corner. Organisers of Quex Park's Sound Island Festival in July have put together an intriguing line-up which sees Manchester's finest James headline, supported by the likes of Inspiral Carpets, Echo and the Bunnymen, Space, and Cast. Expect a lot of 30-somethings digging out their old Carter USM shirts for the occasion.

Day two of the non-camping festival will see perhaps the youngest outing of the summer as Olly Murs and Rizzle Kicks perform – reminding us music is a young person's game deep down.

Back at the Hop Farm, what's billed as the UK's top reggae and dub weekender comes in August with the likes of Freddie McGregor, Frankie Paul and Dawn Penn performing in what could, should the weather be kind, be the surprise hit of the summer. Moving to Kent for the first time, One Love has the festival favourites of 'peace and love' at its heart.

And last, but by no means least, comes Medway's series of Castle Concerts – which seek to tick a box for most generations. There's soul legends Billy Ocean and Alexander O'Neal, throwaway pop kings and queens Steps, classical treat the Royal Philharmonic, and Jools Holland.

This week even saw Sex Pistols frontman John Lydon confirm his Public Image Limited would perform at a new one-day festival, Music Event One on July 28, in Rochester along with the Wedding Present.

Getting to a festival is never a particularly cheap affair.

Yet Kent this summer offers up a rather tasty looking smorgasbord which, if nothing else, means you save on petrol money.

IT'S A MYSTERY: Police conducted an in-depth search for a body in Rankine Road, Tunbridge Wells

Mum's 'quest' to reveal secret of 'dead' girl after police dig finds nothing

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A FAMILY whose garden was dug up in a search for human remains following a tip-off about the death of a young girl 50 years ago said it has sparked a quest to find out what happened.

Jojo Stanley and her children – who have no connection to the case – were moved out of their home and to a hotel last Sunday, as police prepared to begin what could have been a potentially gruesome dig.

Officers from the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate descended on the rear garden of the property in Rankine Road on the Sherwood estate in Tunbridge Wells but, despite a day and a half of digging, they found nothing.

The search was prompted by information given to police relating to a possible crime committed in the late 1950s in which a young woman died.

The property once belonged to a World War Two RAF navigator and speculation surrounding the case suggests one of his nine children came forward claiming a woman called Laura had been buried there.

Other family members said their father was being unfairly implicated in the possible crime.

Ms Stanley, who has a 16-year-old daughter and an autistic son, aged six, said police called an urgent meeting with her five weeks ago and explained they would be searching for human remains.

"I can't even explain the emotions we went through," said the 43-year-old.

"It brought up so many questions about what could have happened. I didn't expect to be hit so hard; I had a horrible feeling for the month leading up to the search.

"I didn't want to step foot on that part of the garden."

Ms Stanley said police had taken aerial shots and carried out extensive work before approaching her.

"The lengths the police went to make me think there has to be some credence behind it all," she said.

"More than just one person came forward with information. They wouldn't have wasted money and resources on this unless something had happened."

Police focused their attentions on an old fish pond in the garden.

"They were very specific about where they were digging, but memories can be distorted so you never know whether that was the right place," said Ms Stanley.

"I don't think this is finished business." She added: "It will take a while for us to move on from this. I don't know whether we would've moved back had human remains been found.

"I feel a quest to find out what happened to this girl. I don't take these allegations lightly."

Ms Stanley, who works in a local school, said there had been a lot of interest from the community about the investigation.

Neighbour Pam Lloyd, 29, said the investigation had come as a shock.

"When I first found out there was a search in the garden I was scared," she said. "It was a huge relief when we found out there was nothing found. To be honest though I'm still a bit wary about the whole thing."

The Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate said it had completed the search of the garden, but has so far given no further information about the investigation.

Det Insp Lee Whitehead, said: "The search of the garden in Rankine Road has been completed and no human remains have been found.

"I would like to thank the residents from Rankine Road and the surrounding area, for their co-operation and patience while we carried out this investigative work."

Archbishop of York John Sentamu has been widely tipped as the next head of the Church of England

Public given chance to help choose the next Archbishop of Canterbury

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

THE search for the 105th Archbishop of Canterbury has officially started.

Speculation surrounding who will take over from Dr Rowan Williams when he leaves in December has so far led to rumours of four candidates, with Archbishop of York John Sentamu at the top of the list.

Other frontrunners become head of the Church of England include Bishop of Norwich Graham James, Bishop of London Richard Chartres, and Bishop of Bradford Nick Baines.

But no official confirmation of any name has been made.

This month, Kent representatives from the Canterbury diocese – which stretches from Maidstone to the east coast and from Thanet to the Isle of Sheppey – will get involved with the consultation process to appoint the new archbishop.

The Archbishops' secretary for appointments and the Prime Minister's appointments secretary met with individuals and groups from churches, businesses, schools, and local councils on Tuesday. A further meeting is planned for April 26.

Mayor of Canterbury, Cllr Ian Thomas; Mayor of Dover, Cllr Ronnie Philpott; and the Lord Lieutenant of Kent Lord De L'Isle will have their views heard during the consultation.

A second meeting will also be held on April 26 between 7-8.30pm at the ISC at Canterbury Cathedral for the public to contribute their thoughts on the appointment.

Local people are involved in the consultation process because as well as heading up the Church of England, the Archbishop is also responsible for the Canterbury diocese.

A spokeswoman for the diocese said: "The meeting is open to anyone. It will provide a chance for local people from across the diocese to contribute their thoughts."

The responsibility for choosing the next Archbishop rests with the Crown Nominations Committee, made up of two bishops from the Church of England, an Archbishop from the Anglican Communion, six members of General Synod and six members elected from the diocese's vacancy-in-see committee, which is chaired by the Bishop of Dover the Right Reverend Trevor Willmott.

They are holding consultations around the country and overseas before they submit the name of a preferred candidate and a second option to the Prime Minister, who makes the final recommendation to the Queen.

Dr Williams, who has been Archbishop of Canterbury for 10 years, will be taking up the position of Master of Magdalene College in Cambridge in January, 2013.

Under his leadership, the Church has been involved in controversial debates on issues including the ordination of gay clergy and women bishops.

Dr Williams has supported the ordination of women and made no objection to the appointment of a gay bishop in Reading.

The Bishop of Rochester, the Rt Rev James Langstaff, said he was sad to see Dr Williams stepping down and paid tribute to his "distinctive contributions" to the contentious debates.

"His wisdom, learning and prayerfulness stand out. He has been in post through times of significant change and debate within both church and wider society," he said.

"Despite what some may say, I think we will come to realise that he has held the unity of the church through these times in a way that few others could have done."

The Bishop of Dover, the Rt Rev Trevor Willmott, who deals with local matters in the absence of the Archbishop, said Dr Williams was deeply valued for his "leadership, pastoral experience, prayerful commitment and warmth".

Anyone wishing to attend the public meeting on April 26 should contact Victoria Greateorex on 01227 459401 or vgreateorex@diocant.org. Seats are limited.

COURT

Fraudster tried to arrange murder of his mother-in-law

By Ed Hill

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A FRAUDSTER has been jailed for more than five years after admitting trying to arrange to have his wife's mother killed.

Bhupinder Desi, 36, believed his mother-in-law was behind his wife's decision to leave the marital home with their two children.

Maidstone Crown Court heard how Desi, of Lennox Road, Gravesend, employed a private investigator in September, 2011, and at first asked him to locate his family.

However, soon after Desi asked if he could locate two witnesses who would attend court and provide false evidence in his forthcoming mortgage fraud trial to help support his claim of innocence.

The private investigator was uneasy with the request and asked Desi to email his requirements.

A month after contacting the investigator, Desi asked him to help him get his children back and suggested his wife have some form of accident.

Less than a week later, he contacted the investigator again to say he did not want to harm his wife, but that he wanted his mother-in-law killed instead.

Desi was arrested at his home on October 13, four days before he was due to stand trial at Maidstone Crown Court on two fraud matters.

He was charged with attempting to pervert the course of justice in relation to his attempts to obtain false witnesses in a criminal hearing in relation to the forthcoming fraud trial, and soliciting to commit murder in relation to his mother-in-law.

Desi pleaded guilty to the charges close to the trial.

Judge Carey sentenced him to five years and three months for soliciting to commit murder, and eight months concurrent for perverting the course of justice.

In addition he was sentenced to three years and six months in relation to the fraud and two years and three months for a separate London-based mortgage fraud, totalling 11 years.

Det Chief Insp Andrea Bishop from the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate said: "Desi was cold and calculating and prepared to go to any lengths to get his wife and children back.

"It didn't matter to him if that cost money or meant getting people to lie on his behalf."

Problem solved

Unique Holland Damp Proof System® is a no-mess, natural way to dry out your house

Your damp proofing questions answered

Holland Damp Proofing managing director Evert De Graaf answers your questions about damp and his unique system to treat it.

What are the signs of damp?

Damp is not always easy to spot but tell-tale signs to look for are a musty smell, stained or peeling wallpaper, bubbling paint, rust marks around nails on skirting boards and mould growth on walls.

Why is it important to treat damp?

It's easy to ignore the signs of damp, but if left untreated it can get much worse, damaging the very fabric of your home and posing serious health risks, especially for those with medical conditions such as asthma or rheumatism.

What can I do about it?

There are many types of damp problems so it's best to leave it to the professionals. You can start by calling Holland Damp Proofing. One of our specialists will give you honest advice and if we think our system is suitable to solve your damp problem we will arrange a free visit. Since we came to the UK in 1999 we have helped thousands of people rid their homes of damp.

How does the Holland Damp Proof System® work?

The system was originally developed in The Netherlands where 60% of homes are built below sea level – so it's got a long and successful history. The idea is simple: draw out the moisture and the damp will disappear. This involves a series of small, damp-regulating bricks which neatly fit into specially-prepared niches in the external walls of your home, close to the ground. These cleverly allow air to flow into the brick chambers and out again – circulating airflow through the inside of the wall which evaporates the moisture, drying out the wall and allowing it to breathe.

Is it suitable for my home?

It doesn't matter whether you have a Victorian terrace, period property, a church...or even a castle...the system is suitable for virtually all types of property including use on cavity, solid, stone and brick walls.

How is it installed?

The system is installed from the outside and is usually fitted in one to two days. The work is done by our own engineers (no subcontractors) who are based at our regional branches throughout the UK.

What are the advantages over chemical damp proofing?

The system is a great alternative to chemical damp proofing which can be messy and involve hacking off plaster work on walls inside your home – a big upheaval! Over time chemical barriers will eventually break down... and the damp will come back. Most importantly with the Holland Damp Proof System® there is no danger of breathing in any toxic chemicals.

How much does it cost?

The system is an investment to keep your home dry and protected for the future. The cost of installing the Holland Damp Proof System® is similar to chemical damp proofing, but as there will be no mess, no replastering and no repeat treatments you will save money in the long term. And with our 20-year guarantee, you will also have total peace of mind.

No mess, no problem

THUMBS UP: Mr Forino

MAUREEN Forino and her husband Charlie lived with a damp home for six years, spending a fortune on solutions they believed would work.

Needless to say, nothing did. "It was a nightmare. We had six years of misery," said Mrs Forino.

The Holland Damp Proof System® was installed in their 1930's bungalow in just one day – with no mess or disruption. After two winters, the damp has stayed away – for good.

MOTORSPORT

Man-size Scalextric Mini is a boy's own dream come true

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

DRIVER Adrian Norman will be living every boy's dream when he gets to race a life-size Scalextric car.

The famous BMW Mini is presently being brought to life to race in a major national championship, and Thanet driver Mr Norman, pictured, will be at the wheel.

Toy maker Hornby has decided its most famous brand needs to be on the track for real. So now Scalextric will be represented in the real-life high adrenaline racing of the Mini Challenge.

It is a life-long dream for Mr Norman to race his childhood passion and he will be teaming up with the experienced Patrick Mortimer to drive their own BMW Mini kitted out with full Scalextric slot car livery. Both share a passion for speed that started as boys with their Scalextric sets and they will be mentored by last year's championship winner Chris Knox.

Mr Norman, who actually works for Scalextric at the Hornby HQ in Margate, will jump into the driver's seat for the first time this week.

His number 8 is competing in the Club Class race against 30 other drivers.

The car is being prepared by Thetford-based team Advert Motorsport.

Mr Norman said: "This is exciting news for us as a team to be supported by Scalextric, but as lifelong fans of the brand, Patrick and I cannot wait to get out there and do our best."

"We have outstanding support both on the race day and behind the scenes."

And Paul Chandler, Scalextric's marketing manager added: "This is a first for the Scalextric brand and something we have always wanted to do."

"Scalextric is a well-known British brand and for most racing car drivers is the toy that started their passion for racing. To support a British race like the Mini Challenge is very exciting for us."

The Minis will be in action at Silverstone, Castle Combe, Brands Hatch, Snetterton, Oulton Park, and Donnington during the championship.

AVIATION

Statue plans for first lady of cross-Channel flight

By Chris Murphy
 editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A YEAR-LONG series of events is under way to celebrate the achievements of plucky female aviator Harriet Quimby.

The first woman to fly the English Channel is celebrated by the Harriet Quimby Centenary Project, based in Dover, and run by Andy Cooper.

He said: "We wanted to organise this extensive programme of events to commemorate and celebrate the life and achievements of Harriet and her relevance to Dover."

"With Heritage Lottery funding, we have commissioned a DVD, which will form part of an educational pack sent to every school and college in the area. Also in the pack will be booklets and teachers' notes."

The group has also commissioned a replica of the American's famous purple flying suit to be created from satin, by Louise Miller of Mascarada in London Road, Dover.

A half-sized replica model of the Bleriot XI monoplane she used on her Channel flight will be built by the Bloobirds flying club of Dover.

All will be on permanent display at the Dover Transport Museum from July.

There is also due to be a Harriet Quimby Day at the Dover Regatta on July 4, American Independence Day. This will be attended by the American ambassador, Lord Warden of The Cinque Ports, chairman of Dover District Council, and chairman of Whitfield Parish Council, holding a small ceremony on Dover seafront.

Last weekend, a plaque to Quimby was unveiled at the Ramada Hotel, Whitfield.

On April 16, 1912, Quimby took off from Dover and flew to Calais in 59 minutes. At the time, the journalist's accomplishment received little media attention, as the sinking of the Titanic the day before dominated the headlines.

Mr Cooper said: "The idea is that in the coming year, we will raise sufficient funds for a statue of Miss Quimby to be erected on the White Cliffs. We have made a pre-funding application to the Arts Council to raise the £90,000 needed for this and we are currently working in conjunction with East Kent Arts and Regeneration and Dover Arts Development Ltd to make this happen."

THE devastating aftermath of last year's earthquake in Japan will probably have put off many people from travelling to the country's trouble spots.

Despite a major clear-up following the 8.9-magnitude tremor, which triggered a destructive 14-metre tsunami and subsequent explosions at the Fukushima nuclear power plant, only recently have people living close to the nuclear site been allowed to return.

But for fearless Joanna Boatfield, from Kingsnorth in Ashford, the risks of being so close to a potentially dangerous area failed to dampen her desire to travel to the north east of Japan.

The 22-year-old, who studied at the University of Kent, is living just 80 miles south of the troubled Fukushima plant in Hitachiomiya, Ibaraki Prefecture, teaching English to secondary school students.

"My dad was quite funny when I told him I was considering living in Japan," she said.

"He spent quite a bit of time researching the area and details related to the nuclear situation.

"Fortunately, he gave me his seal of approval. My mum was worried about earthquakes – not actually the quake, but more about whether I knew what to do in the event of one.

"I'm not too worried. I was a bit concerned at first but I did my research. Another teacher I know living in Japan told me everything was pretty normal."

Miss Boatfield, who worked at Tesco in Ashford before starting her teaching career, admitted she had experienced earthquakes since arriving in Japan last month.

"There are tremors all the time, however most are minor," she said. "I realise there is not a lot I can do about it."

The epicentre of last year's earthquake was undersea, 43 miles east of the Oshika Peninsula. Hitachiomiya, where Miss Boatfield is living, was hit with tremors with a 6.5 magnitude.

The disaster, which caused a nuclear meltdown and release of radioactive materials, left 15,854 dead and 26,992 injured. More than 31,100 people are still missing.

Miss Boatfield, said she found the situation in Japan to be different to media portrayals in the UK.

"I was really surprised how modest the Japanese people are about what has happened in the last year or so," she said.

"Everyone goes out of their way to help you here, no matter how troublesome it might be."

"She added: "Don't sell Japan short because of the nuclear issue."

YOUNG PEOPLE

Scouting numbers reach an all-time record high as 750 sign up in a year

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

SCOUTING has been enjoying a renaissance in Kent as youngsters rediscover the benefits of joining the 105-year-old organisation.

Scouting chiefs are delighted with the steady rise in numbers over the past seven years, and say it provides a great base to continue building membership.

Former scouts returning to encourage others to join has helped, but parents are seeing the results of friends' children joining and are following suit.

Kent Scout numbers grew by four per cent in the past year, which has helped boost recruitment by 19 per cent since 2005.

In the past 12 months, membership increased by 750 youngsters, making a county total of 19,488, the highest ever, and the second highest county in UK. A quarter of members are girls.

An analysis of the stats found Explorer Scouts, for 14 to 18-year-olds, is the fastest-growing group over the last year with a 12 per cent increase, giving it 44 per cent of the total.

Organisers say this makes Scouting the largest co-educational youth movement in the county.

The Scout Association believes this is in part due to the range of activities offered, with the emphasis on outdoor adventure activities appropriate to the age group concerned – and with Kent boasting the longest coastline of any county it offers an unparalleled range of water activities from scuba diving to powerboating.

Harvey Kennett, the county commissioner for Scouting in Kent, who only took over the reins in January, said: "I am delighted to have taken over after all the work by the previous commissioner, and hope to build on his success. I particularly want to focus on the quality of Scouting we offer and to increase the numbers of young leaders who can inspire the next generation."

Television personality and survival expert Bear Grylls is also Britain's Chief Scout. He said it was great to see Scout numbers in Kent continuing to rise.

LONDON MARATHON

Runners' blood, sweat and tears for charity

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

RUNNERS from across the county will be pounding the streets of the capital this weekend for the annual London Marathon.

Many of Kent's marathon runners will be aiming to raise thousands of pounds for charity with their efforts over the 26 mile course.

Among Sunday's runners are Luke Edmonds from Herne Bay, who takes on his second London Marathon to help Starlight grant the wishes of seriously and terminally ill children. There are currently 30 children in Kent waiting to have once-in-a-lifetime wishes come true.

Simon Graydon, from Ringwould, has run the equivalent distance of nine marathons in five days and is now doing the race for the RNLI.

The 40-year-old headteacher said: "Living by the coast, the RNLI was a natural choice as they provide a lifeline for the many people who work and play on the sea."

Tristram Burgess, from Kennington, Ashford, has a special inspiration for his run for Barnardo's. He said: "Back in July, my mother, Hazel, challenged me to run the marathon, and beat her time. The next month she lost her battle with cancer. At her funeral she had requested that people make donations to Barnardo's."

Maidstone's Andy Enston, 42, works for South

East Water and hopes to raise £2,000 for WaterAid, an international charity which aims to provide safe water, sanitation and hygiene education for all.

He said: "Being a plumber I can relate not only to the importance of having access to clean, safe running water, but also the work that WaterAid puts in to establishing these systems together with the community."

Tracey Churchyard, 48, from Welling, is raising funds for Age UK, the charity dedicated to improving the lives of older people. She said: "This is my opportunity to give something back to older people in our society – a vital cause that's important but often overlooked."

Captain Phil Layton of the Hythe Salvation Army said: "Not everything has gone according to plan, I've experienced strained abdominal muscles, blisters, even bleeding nipples."

"But amid the aches, strains, sweat and pain, the greatest motivation to persevere will be to have plenty of sponsorship to once more help the Salvation Army meet its financial needs as it aims to continue its work in the community."

Another first timer is Folkestone bar owner Steven Bains, 40, who wants to shed five stone and raise cash for Leonard Cheshire Disability.

The Gravesend resident said: "A year ago I could barely run up the road, if you'd told me that 12 months later I'd be running the London Marathon then I wouldn't have believed you."

Several people are running for Kent Association for the Blind. Sutton Valance student Alastair Carter is running having done charity pram races for five years.

Glynis Hanrahan, a Maidstone optometrist hopes to raise more than £400. She said: "Running a regular clinic within the KAB Sight Centre, I have plenty of experience working with people with eye conditions. I value the work that KAB does to help transform people's lives."

Charlie Meredith-Hardy hopes to raise £1,000 and said: "My niece is visually impaired and KAB has helped her enormously."

Insurance expert Ray Johnson, from Folkestone is also running for KAB, and aims to raise £750 and finish in a personal best time.

And West Malling couple Allan and Deborah Clark are looking for £3,000. Allan said: "KAB supports more than 15,500 people with a visual impairment, providing expert advice on how to stay independent and get the most out of life."

The wife and sister of a Tunbridge Wells GP Paul Roome, 43, who has the heart muscle disease cardiomyopathy are running to help other patients with the condition.

His wife Jane, 42, and also a GP, and his sister Elizabeth Dowling, a 47-year-old charity volunteer, are raising aid for the Cardiomyopathy Association.

Bank manager Hayley Thomas, 37, from Borough Green supports the NSPCC's ChildLine. She said: "This is my first London Marathon and I am very excited and nervous."

Others are also running for ChildLine. These include student Melissa Esref, 20, from Canterbury, and Sonja du Plessis, 46, from Tunbridge Wells, a director for Pricewaterhouse Coopers

LLP. She said: "This is my eighth consecutive marathon. I did one in fancy dress as Snow White. It draws great support from the crowd."

Financier Keith Jones, from Maidstone, said: "This is the fourth time I have run the marathon. As a parent, the thought of vulnerable children being at risk is awful so it's vital to raise funds for the NSPCC and ChildLine."

And design agency owner Michael Holman, 47, from Tunbridge Wells, who said: "The work of the NSPCC is vital – the charity protects those who are unable to protect themselves."

Maidstone firefighter mum Carole Browne, 46, is raising funds for Richard House Children's Hospice after her eight-day-old daughter spent her last days there. She said: "Charlotte was born with Edwards Syndrome and could not breathe properly. She also had a heart problem."

Breast cancer sufferer Sarah Tonry, 52, from Whitstable, is raising money for children's charity Rainbow Trust.

After getting ankle fractures during training, doctors warned she could be suffering from osteoporosis, brought on by treatment for two bouts of breast cancer.

The mum-of-three is determined to run in honour of the loved ones she has lost – her mother, father and brother in the space of 10 years.

Ashley Giles from Broadstairs runs for disability charity Livability, and said: "I've been aware of people with disabilities since I was young due to my parents working with disabled young people and family members with disabilities."

Girlguiding volunteer Dr Helen Barton, 30, from Tunbridge Wells said: "It's great to be running for a charity that I feel so passionately about because it means I can talk about guiding all the time." The GP wants to raise £1,400.

A HIDDEN BEAUTY: Holywell Spring is located in a tranquil area of rolling grassland near Folkestone

Forgotten sacred wells that still spring eternal

Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

A LITTLE known part of the ancient heritage of the rolling grassland Downs behind Folkestone lies between Sugarloaf Hill and the A260 Canterbury Road.

The origins of the Holywell Spring are shrouded in mystery, but this tranquil area of streams in a small valley is featured in the publication by arts group Strange Cargo of Everywhere Means Something to Someone, the 'People's Guidebook to Folkestone' which is currently a best-seller in the town's branch of Waterstones.

Currently giving its name to a local street Holywell Avenue, and with a bus stop named after it, the flowing water is also sometimes known as the Lady Well or St Thomas' Well as it is believed pilgrims on their way to the shrine of martyred Archbishop of Canterbury Thomas Becket may have stopped there to refresh themselves.

According to the beliefs of the time, offerings to the saint would have been left, sometimes in the form of garments or jewellery. This tradition continues in the form of today's wishing wells.

Other 'Becket' wells and springs exist in Bapchild, where one used to provide a water source for a leper hospital, and Kemsing where the archbishop himself is said to have seen the village needed a water supply, so stuck his staff in the ground causing water to gush out.

Whatever the truth of the story the medieval masonry which surrounded the source still exists.

The Folkestone spring includes what researchers for the book, published to coincide with last year's Triennial arts festival, first though was a mill-race stone.

But later research identified it as being similar to one which caps water bubbling to the surface in Glastonbury, Somerset – a town long associated with mythology concerning King Arthur, Joseph of Arimathea and even a visit by the young Jesus Christ to Britain's shores.

The area is easily accessible by footpaths, both from the main road and across the hills.

But it remains seldom visited and little known, even by those who live in residential areas less than a quarter of a mile away.

Springs are one of the most important parts of the landscape of ancient England, and although many are now designated as 'holy wells', their traditions reach far further back in time.

Historians are broadly agreed that watercourses flowing from the ground, such as the Folkestone springs, were a sacred site to tribal peoples in the distant past – with their older use overlaid by Christian legends.

Many are associated with druids and their sacred groves of oak and thorn.

As Christianity spread, priests, unable to stop people visiting their ancient shrines, simply adopted them and used them for baptism or as meeting points for pilgrims and worshippers.

As St Thomas Becket is associated with the east Kent shrine, so across the country are many others saints – but scratching under the surface reveals legends connecting the sites with Arthur's knights, pagan deities, and sprites and faeries.

With piped water readily available for everyday use, the vital part springs played in life in past times is not immediately obvious, although they are vital to many communities across Africa and the Indian sub-continent.

But for centuries they provided the vital water for humans, animals and crops and a dried-up well could prove a disaster for a village.

The ancient people of England had a natural reverence for places where they could see pure and fresh water emerging from the earth. As a result flowing water has played an important role in mythology and legend throughout the ages.

Ambition breeds success

Director of Turner Contemporary Victoria Pomery reflects on the role of the gallery in regeneration and the achievements of its first year

TURNER Contemporary, Kent's flagship gallery, celebrated its first birthday this week.

Designed by leading British architect Sir David Chipperfield, the gallery was opened by Tracey Emin and Jools Holland in April, 2011, and has already welcomed more than half a million visitors.

Kent County Council demonstrated its ambition and bold vision in supporting the development of the gallery, showing courage and determination in using culture as a driver for regeneration.

There were many who doubted whether a gallery would ever be built in Margate and even more who were sceptical about whether it would attract visitors. The great news is that Turner Contemporary has had a phenomenal first year of operation and is set for another wonderful year ahead.

Over the past year, we have undertaken research into our audiences and the impact we are having. The gallery has already delivered benefits to the Kent economy of £13.8m, supporting new businesses and jobs, and raising the profile of Margate and Kent in media around the world.

Admittedly these are early days – we've only just marked our first birthday – and regeneration takes time – its not just about improvements to buildings and the public realm, it is about changing mind sets. Margate Old Town has already been transformed and we feel confident more will follow. This will take commitment and strategic leadership from partners such as KCC, Thanet District Council and the private sector.

The arts are relevant to everybody's lives and the gallery is committed to enriching the cultural life of Kent.

Since opening we have presented four major exhibitions and brought Auguste Rodin's magnificent work The Kiss to Margate. There has always been a least one work by JMW Turner in the gallery and all our exhibitions have been free.

Currently we have a critically acclaimed exhibition, Turner and the Elements, which visitors have travelled from near and far to see.

The gallery is a major educational resource used by schools, colleges and universities as well as community groups and individuals. We run a Schools and Learning Programme, which welcomed more than 6,000 school children in our first year. In addition, we organise talks, music and dance performances. The programme changes frequently so there is always something different to see and experience.

Last November Her Majesty the Queen made a visit to the gallery. Whilst here she met schoolchildren, artists and members of the community, all of whom have had some connection to the gallery. It was a day of celebration.

The gallery has already delivered benefits to Kent's economy of £13.8m

Turner Contemporary is rooted in Margate but we are already making a significant contribution to the cultural infrastructure of the UK. This summer we will be showing an exhibition of new work by Tracey Emin, part of the London 2012 Festival linked to the Olympics, and new commissions by three highly regarded artists – Lindsay Seers, John Smith and Mark Wallinger.

Nationally, we know the arts support tourism, inward investment, education and enhance the UK's profile. We are extremely fortunate to have so many fantastic arts organisations around the country and Kent should feel proud that it has Turner Contemporary.

Thank you to everyone who supported us in our opening 12 months and I hope you will visit us in our second year.

KOS COMMENT

Be sure before giving fracking the go ahead

FRACKING had been relatively unknown until it hit the headlines after causing two earth tremors.

It's now been claimed that while the gas extraction method can cause earthquakes, this can be avoided under strict rules. But there's also the threat of water contamination, which is even more concerning, not just for those living near potential fracking sites in Kent, but the whole county.

So is it really worth the risk? Some would argue that fracking produces less carbon emissions than other techniques and is a cheap option of energy supply. But should this be at the detriment of people's health? The Government needs to be 100 per cent sure before it gives it the green light.

100 days and counting

THIS week the 100-day countdown started for the Olympics.

That's just over three months until the world's greatest sporting event descends on our doorstep.

So let's get excited and make the most of it; it will be a once in a lifetime special event.

Please vote for minority party

JOHN Dutton (Letters, April 15) is quite right when he says people should "vote against the usual suspects".

His letter is totally right and raises some accurate points. The people of Bradford West got it right recently and George Galloway's win was not just about stay-at-home Labour supporters but in fact the electorate actually getting out and voting.

People should treat local elections seriously and vote, and on this occasion should vote for minor parties (not BNP please) to show their displeasure at the incompetent governments we have had to suffer over the last many number of years.

On another point, according to the latest opinion polls 48 per cent of people want the UK to leave the EU yet only one party – as far as I know – (Ukip) promises they will leave the EU if elected. However Ukip never receive 48 per cent of the vote.

The problem with the electorate of this country is that they only vote for the main parties as they are the only ones that can win. If they voted as they believe then none of the main parties would be in government, and these three parties would therefore not be the main parties any more.

I urge every elector who has a vote to think before voting then vote for what they agree with and not because of the colour of their rosette.

If there is a Loony candidate then please vote Loony, otherwise vote for a minor party but not a racist one.

Independent means local

ARTICLES and letters in the local press are appearing advocating the electorate vote for local independent candidates on May 3.

Could this advice be right and in the interests of Kent? Let's examine the evidence.

We live under a local Conservative majority whose candidates appear to be linked to the 'Westminster bubble'. Therefore not a surprise that local politics reflect national policies regardless of Kent's particular needs.

Under this system we appear to have the biggest and deepest potholes in our roads; an inadequate rural transport system as highlighted by the lack of buses, especially to our new hospital; no real progress in the much-needed A21 dualling; a lack of housing resulting in overcrowding of family homes.

We also have a planning system which appears unable to be even handed, penalising law-abiding citizens who adhere to the rules while permitting abuse by developers, travellers and the usual suspects; and the lack of youth facilities keeping our children interested and away from drugs and street corners.

Therefore a vote for independent candidates would result in Kent's local problems being pursued and solved, by local representatives who would be free to pursue with single mindedness and vigour to the benefit of residents, without the obstacle of national politics.

Therefore the answer is 'yes' – vote for independent candidates locally, even if your national loyalty is blue.

Vanity surgery is not needed

THE news often makes my blood boil.

We keep hearing about whether the NHS should rescue victims of misadventure regarding defective cosmetic surgery. This would certainly be an expensive recovery mission, but why was there no serious discussion on the topic years ago?

There are 14-year-olds saving up for their 'jobs' as we speak, you'll hear it casually discussed on the bus, high street and in public places.

Perfectly healthy young women are being sucked into this money-making monster for the most spurious of reasons. Is it done to create greater acumen in business for women; or just to impress other women; or in the quest to find Mr Right?

Things like this need to be discussed earnestly. Nobody says anything.

Confusion on royal deaths

I ENJOYED your history article very much in last week's paper. The Kent Remembered series is always entertaining.

However, I think you have muddled your kings who were 'seconds'. The cause of Richard II's death is unknown, speculation being that he was starved to death.

It is around Edward II that the story of execution by red hot poker has grown, despite the fact he was probably strangled.

The myth did, however, allow a very good band to assume the name of Edward II and the Red Hot Polkas, later relaunched as e2K.

Bill Farey,

Don't leave them to starve

I want to draw readers' attention to an unfolding humanitarian crisis that is going largely unnoticed by the world.

In West Africa, more than 10.5 million people are running out of food and starvation is imminent.

While no amount of funding can make the rain fall in the region, there is still time to minimise the devastation by helping families to prepare for this emergency and stop them from running out of food completely.

I support the group CARE International UK, which has been working in the region for many years and is working to stop this turning into a humanitarian catastrophe while raising the alarm about the situation.

I urge your readers to help – please visit the website www.careinternational.org.uk/west-africa and make a donation, however small, to help this worthy cause.

It is a well known fact that every £1 invested in avoiding disaster at an early stage saves at least £4 that would be spent on disaster relief at a later stage.

That is a good reason to act now, but the real reason to take action has to be that we have it in our power stop the suffering of children who, through no fault of their own, face the increasing struggle of hunger and starvation in the coming months.

Responding now will save money but more importantly it will save lives.

Will Japanese turn to Dungeness after their nuclear catastrophe?

EXCLUSIVE by Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

EAST Kent MP Damian Collins is calling on the Japanese to invest in a new nuclear power station at Dungeness.

His move comes after a meeting between Prime Minister David Cameron and his Japanese counterpart Yoshihiko Noda that opened the door for the Far Eastern nation to build nuclear plants in the UK in return for help in cleaning up the Fukushima plant damaged in last year's earthquake and tsunami.

Collins, MP for Folkestone and Hythe, has been a long-term campaigner for investment in a third power station on Romney Marsh, with Dungeness A currently decommissioned and Dungeness B scheduled to cease operations in 2018.

But the site could home a new plant as the Government has announced that nuclear energy will form part of Britain's future power-generation strategy.

Collins said: "Investment in Britain's nuclear industry is good news and I hope the Japanese take a look at Dungeness. The more countries looking to invest in the industry, the better.

"The door remains open for development at Dungeness and I hope the Japanese will consider the location."

The power station is a source of local employment but has its opponents, who say it poses environmental dangers in an area renowned across the world for its wildlife. Other objections are due to its proximity to Lydd airport.

SEEING THE LIGHT? Dungeness could be considered by the Japanese for a new nuclear plant; Damian Collins, right, hopes so...

Mr Cameron recently undertook his first official visit to Japan and while there signed a deal that opened up the UK's nuclear market to "Japanese companies' technical expertise in new plant design and construction".

As part of the agreement, British companies will be asked to help with the clean-up operation at the Fukushima plant damaged in the 2011 tsunami.

Cameron said while on his trip: "British companies have significant expertise in nuclear decommissioning and clean-up, with 19 nuclear sites in the UK [including Dungeness B] currently being managed through the process."

The agreement stated: "Japanese companies' technical expertise in new plant design and construction, and the UK's decommissioning and waste-management experience and technology make civil nuclear cooperation particularly mutually beneficial."

Charles Hendry, minister of state for energy, said: "I am in no doubt that co-operation with Japan in these areas will bring mutual benefits.

"This agreement will open up opportunities for UK firms to work with Japanese industry and to continue to share the UK's world-class expertise, just as we did in the aftermath of Fukushima."

There is, however, still strong opposition to development at Dungeness.

Steve Dawe, Kent Green Party spokesman, pointed to the cost of construction of such a plant, together with the cost of making the landscape free of contamination after decommissioning.

He said: "The site has been identified correctly by the Environment Agency as poor because of its shingle beach, which will become increasingly vulnerable to rising sea levels.

"Also it is most peculiar that a country in the process of phasing out its nuclear plants will be helping another nation to establish new ones."

PROPERTY

Zoopla merger given go-ahead by the OFT

THE planned merger of two of the UK's biggest companies in the online property sector has been cleared by the Office of Fair Trading.

Zoopla, which powers the homes24.co.uk property portal run by media group Archant, publisher of Kent on Sunday, and the Digital Property Group, the business behind Findaproperty.com and Primelocation.com, announced their intention to merge in October.

The deal will create greater competition for Rightmove by bringing together the UK's second, third and fourth largest property websites.

Zoopla was founded in 2008, with homes24.co.uk becoming part of its network in January last year. Digital Property Group is owned by the Daily Mail and General Trust.

Speaking at the time the merger was announced, Martin Cunningham, commercial director of homes24.co.uk, said the consolidation of the UK property portal sector to "a definitive two players" would benefit consumers and agents alike.

The merger is set to take place during the next few weeks.

EXPANSION

Kings Hill media agency makes the news as move creates 30 positions

THREE-and-a-half years after it moved to Kings Hill, media agency The Specialist Works is expanding its base on the park and plans to recruit up to 30 new workers.

The company is one of the UK's largest independent media agencies, with a turnover of more than £45 million and employing more than 60 staff in Kent, London and Manchester.

It was voted one of the Sunday Times's 100 Best Small Companies To Work For in 2012 and rated number 26 in advertising trade magazine Campaign's Top 50 Media Agencies league table.

With expansion plans for its print, digital and creative departments over the next three years, the company plans to hike staff numbers from 25 to 55, moving into 3,606 sq ft in 30 Tower View from Churchill Square.

"It is a very successful operation thriving in the face of the current economic climate," said operations director Tom Wilson.

"We initially moved part of our business to Kings Hill from London because our key staff were fed up with commuting. We have also found recruiting locally is a very good option and there is less staff turnover than there is in London.

"We are delighted we have been able to find larger premises on site so we can keep our prestigious Kings Hill address – the business moving onwards and upwards."

DISTRIBUTION

Company raises glass to Stateside operation

A FIRM specialising in spirits expects to increase export sales by 30 per cent within the next year after signing a £200,000 deal with a US distributor – just four years after it faced ruin.

Old St Andrews, based in Sevenoaks, designs, bottle and distributes premium alcohol brands, including whisky and gin, which now have such global appeal that the company makes 90 per cent of its sales from overseas orders.

"We've just signed up our latest distributor in New Jersey as a direct result of an UKTI market visit last autumn," said managing director Bob Gorton. "The first annual contract is worth $300,000 [£200,000], but we expect this figure to double as sales roll out across America."

Yet only four years ago the company was on the brink of bankruptcy before being bought out by Gorton, who was then a business adviser.

He saw potential in the company but decided that the business needed a change of direction to target the high end of the whisky and gin markets.

He said: "We've found having face-to-face meetings abroad virtually guarantees business."

Taxman faces paying out millions over unfair fines

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

SMALL businesses may be falling victim to unfair fines from HM Revenue & Customs (HMRC), according to a recent judgement by a tax tribunal.

The findings of the Hok Limited vs HMRC tribunal suggested that HMRC was waiting an unacceptable length of time to inform businesses that they have missed tax-filing deadlines, resulting in business-owners accruing months of late-payment charges before realising they owed any money.

Simon Warne, tax partner at Crowe Clark Whitehill, a national firm offering audit, tax and business-advisory services, with offices in Tunbridge Wells and Maidstone, said: "Depending on the results of an appeal, HMRC may be obliged to make refunds worth millions of pounds to almost 100,000 businesses."

In the case of Hok Limited, the company believed it was not necessary to file the appropriate returns as its only employee had ceased employment partway through the year.

Although it accepts it was wrong in this assumption, it claims the error would have been remedied far sooner if HMRC had notified the company, thereby avoiding any ongoing penalties. The tribunal ruled that HMRC acted neither fairly nor in good conscience and the penalty was set at £100 rather than a minimum of £500.

Warne said: "What appears to be happening is that a company which misses the tax-filing deadline in May will not receive a computer-generated reminder from HMRC until September."

"By this time, businesses are faced with four months' late-payments fees at £100 per month, as well as another £100 charge for late completion of paperwork – meaning there will always be a minimum £500 penalty."

"The tribunal has ruled these fines are disproportionately unfair as a slight error can leave companies with large fines to pay."

"There is a general feeling it is the role of the Government organisations to ensure tax is paid correctly, rather than to catch people out."

CASH NOT IN HAND: If the courts rule that HMRC has been slow to notify companies over wrong tax payments, it could be due to pay out millions to almost 100,000 UK businesses

Farmer ploughs new furrow by using hi-tech methods to help business grow

A FARMER is using the latest iPhone-type hand-held technology to try to get one step ahead of the competition.

Ashford-based Andrew Martin has branched out from his 1,600-acre Broadstream Farm on Romney Marsh into arable-farm contracting.

And to keep track of his expanding crop portfolio, he has turned to the latest in electronic farm-management systems.

"My tractors rarely leave the yard these days without a pre-generated work plan," said Martin, who uses equipment supplied by software specialist Landmark Systems to give him up-to-the-minute information on soil type, rotation patterns and stock control.

"Due to the success of the business we have set up each client as a separate entity and it is great to be able to transfer, record and charge stock effortlessly between different cost centres."

"At the same time we can access important field data from the tractor cab, including plans for spraying, fertilizer-application and muck-spreading."

"Easy access to this type of information is important for any farmer, but because all of the land we farm is in a Nitrate Vulnerable Zone, compliance with agreed fertilizer patterns is absolutely vital."

Martin has seen his contract-farming acreage double in recent years and he now manages five major clients in addition to his own farm.

He manages a standard arable rotation of wheat, barley, oats, beans, peas and oilseed rape.

Nigel Parsons, managing director of Landmark Systems, said: "Modern farming is all about having accurate, real-time management information that allows you to keep on top of costs and control stock effectively."

"Now, more than ever, farmers offering contracting services like Andrew need immediate, easy access to information such as crop yields and machinery usage."

"Being able to see detailed work plans out in the field is a crucial part of successful farming in the 21st century."

TAKEOVER

Golf centre's new owner is asking for customer 'in-putt'

MYTIME Active has bought Orpington Golf Centre from Crown Golf.

Crown Golf has traded the property since January 2005, following its acquisition of American Golf (AGUK).

The club was founded in the early 1970s and offers 53 holes of golf, a driving range and teaching academy, together with retail and food and beverage facilities.

Stephen Lewis, chief executive of Crown Golf, said: "We are extremely pleased to be passing on this property to a new owner who has great ambition for the site."

"I would like to take this opportunity to say a special thank-you to all the Orpington Golf Centre staff for their hard work and diligence during the sale process and wish them every success under the new ownership."

"I would also like to thank all our customers for their loyalty during our period of ownership and to wish them continued enjoyment of Orpington Golf Centre under the new ownership of Mytime Active."

Mytime Active chief executive Steve Price said: "Orpington will be a great addition to our growing range of golf courses and will complement those we already manage at Farnborough, Bromley, Bexley and Maidstone."

"As a social enterprise we are committed to improving quality and value, and we're looking forward to meeting customers to discuss potential future improvements."

Training, courses and careers

College plans to build on construction popularity

NORTH West Kent College is offering a construction programme at its newly redeveloped Dartford campus.

Construction, building services and engineering courses are already offered at the college's Gravesend campus, but this new Dartford offering will now enable students from Dartford and the surrounding areas to be in easier commuting distance.

From September, the Dartford campus will offer a multi-skills construction one-year programme, which will include units covering electrical, ceramic tiling, carpentry, brick work and painting and decorating. These courses will provide students with a broad base training across all skill areas, and an opportunity to try them out and perhaps specialise in their second year.

This is an innovative move for the college as traditionally the Dartford campus has previously only offered painting and decorating.

Following the increase in demand and enquiries about construction courses at Dartford, vice principal Penny

Morgan, said: "We are offering this course so students can experience a range of construction industry skills, but do not have to travel to Gravesend for them."

"Students have heard about our good reputation and want to be trained by our highly skilled and knowledgeable staff."

"The courses on offer will also include a link to the award-winning Sustainable Construction Centre, SusCon, which is part of a joint initiative, based at the Bridge in Dartford."

Level 1 is the entry requirement for the course, but students could successfully complete a vocational course and qualify for entry that way, said Ms Morgan.

In addition to an increased construction programme being offered at the Dartford campus, the college has recently introduced sports and business and secretarial courses at the newly redeveloped Gravesend campus.

They want to encourage more students from the local community and surrounding areas to study with them on in-

Another new feature is the Level 2 Award in medical terminology to address the needs of the healthcare industry.

And as part of its sports programme offering, the college's Football Academy has secured a partnership deal with Gillingham FC.

Associate director of sport and leisure Chris Lydon, said: "Students will be able to combine their full-time studies with professional football training as part of the partnership, to be delivered both at Dartford and Medway."

"With Gillingham FC currently competing in League Two of the Football League the partnership gives our students the chance to study while training and representing a professional football club."

Emily-Jo scoops apprentice award

EMILY-JO Howarth from Whitstable has been named Southern Water's Apprentice of the Year.

The 23-year-old received her award at Fontwell Park Racecourse, West Sussex.

She was presented with a toolkit, a cheque for £250, and the winner's trophy shield, by Southern Water's chief executive Matthew Wright.

Emily-Jo is in the second year of her electrical apprenticeship and is based at Weatherlees Wastewater Treatment Works near Ramsgate.

Before joining Southern Water, she worked for the Royal Fleet Auxiliary, which supports Royal Navy ships around the world, supplying them with fuel, ammunition and supplies.

She said: "I wanted a new challenge and a job with a bit more stability. I'm really happy I made the move. It was amazing to win Apprentice of the Year and means all the hard work has paid off. "I'm really excited about the future."

Mr Wright said the apprentices were a "vital part" of the business, adding: "At a time when we are hearing there are fewer opportunities for young people, it is fantastic this scheme is going from strength to strength. I'd also like to thank the mentors who guide people through their apprenticeships."

Celebrating countywide success

BUSINESSES across the county are at the forefront of innovative thinking and are getting plenty of recognition for it.

And with 2012 such a momentous year for the UK, Kent is well and truly at the heart of all that is happening – as well as seeing its businesses create international waves.

Gallagher Group, the Maidstone building, civil-engineering and property business, and owner of Hermitage Quarry, is working to ensure that the Olympic facilities are ready for the arrival of the world's biggest sporting event to London.

As the largest source of high-quality Kentish ragstone, Gallagher has been appointed to deliver two schemes for ISG Plc, the principal contractor on behalf of LOCOG (London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games & Paralympic Games).

The schemes are in the Lee Valley, north-east London, home to the White Water Rafting Centre, and Hadleigh Farm, the venue for the Olympic mountain-bike course.

The new work for Gallagher Group follows its restoration of the walls of the River Lee, which runs through the Olympic Park.

Nick Yandle, chief executive of Gallagher Group in Kent, said: "As the last remaining supplier of high-quality Kentish ragstone, Gallagher supplied blocks and coping stones to match the existing Kentish ragstone river walls and leave our own legacy.

"We are delighted and honoured to have played our part in delivering the London Olympic Games. Using locally-sourced indigenous materials is all part of ensuring London is truly 'the sustainable games'."

Sure to be very busy this summer with both the Olympics and the Queen's Diamond Jubilee is Dover.

Its cruise port and Visit Kent have jointly won the prestigious Cruise Insight's award for best destination experience (organised tours) 2011.

The awards were announced and presented during the Cruise Shipping Convention in Miami, where the two organisations exhibit in the Cruise Britain pavilion.

Kate O'Hara, head of business delivery at Port of Dover, said: "The partnership between Dover Cruise Port and Visit Kent has been extremely successful in promoting the wealth and variety of attractions and themes over the past few years.

"As a result, the joint venture has seen an increase in the number of cruise calls to Dover Cruise Port.

"The award demonstrates the commitment to deliver high levels of customer service and wonderful experiences that passengers continue to enjoy during their stay in Kent."

Two Ashford companies have also gained prestigious awards after beating off tough competition at a ceremony celebrating business excellence.

Rift UK Ltd and Quorum Technologies Ltd took the accolades at the Kent Invicta Chamber Awards held at the Canterbury Cathedral Lodge, within the precincts of Canterbury Cathedral.

Rift UK, a tax-refund specialist, took the business-of-the-year award and innovative Quorum Technologies walked away with the achievement-in-international-business accolade.

Two additional companies made it as finalists in the excellence-in-customer-service category – Woodley Coles LLP, based at Challock, and Ashford International Hotel.

Jo James, chief executive of Kent

Invicta Chamber of Commerce, said: "The awards have been a catalyst to promote the excellence in business that is in abundance within Kent.

"The awards were in five categories, and with a record number of entries for each, judges had a difficult time making the selection process."

Andrew Osborne, economic development manager for Ashford Borough Council, said: "The fact that two of this year's award-winners have a base in the borough is fantastic and our congratulations go out to them both.

"It is also great to see two local companies within the finalists for excellence in customer services. This showcases the quality of businesses located in the borough."

(VARIOUS ROADS, MAIDSTONE) (PEDESTRIAN CROSSINGS) ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984

(PROVISION OF TRAFFIC CALMING MEASURES) THE HIGHWAYS ACT 1980 AS AMENDED BY THE TRANSPORT ACT 1981 AND THE ROAD TRAFFIC ACT 1991

NOTICE is hereby given that Kent County Council, in exercise of its powers under Section 9 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 as amended, has made experimental Orders the effect of which have temporarily suspended various restrictions in Bank Street, High Street, King Street, Mill Street and Pudding Lane, Maidstone for a period of up to 18 months and replaced them with experimental waiting, loading and access restrictions. This work is connected with environmental highway improvements in the High Street which has been the subject of earlier consultations.

The purpose of carrying out consultation on experimental restrictions is to enable the proposals to be flexible so that all of the needs of the community are met. In the event that the Council considers the experiment has been successful during a period of operation not exceeding 18 months from commencement, and that it should be made permanent, a further Notice will be published.

As a part of this process, representations can be made by individuals and organisations affected by the proposals either in support or to highlight concerns, during the period of operation of the experimental Orders. This will be a minimum of six months and could be up to a maximum of eighteen months from Friday 27th April 2012.

The proposals for the Maidstone High Street Public Realm Project aim to improve how the High Street looks, feels and works. The completed scheme will see less road space given over to vehicles and a new public space created in front of the Town Hall.

The wider pavements and new raised crossing points as detailed in Schedule 1, will make the street more people-friendly, whilst maintaining access for buses, taxis, loading vehicles and blue badge holders. High quality surfaces will be laid across the pavements, crossings and newly created space, which will attract shoppers and tourists, and encourage them to relax and spend time there.

Entry for all motorised vehicles into the area will be via Pudding Lane, whilst access will be maintained into the High Street and King Street for buses, taxis and cycles only and into Mill Street from its junction with Palace Avenue for buses only. Exit from the area is permitted via any of the routes.

Restrictions to be suspended are as follows:

Bank Street: Prohibition of Driving, Prohibition of Waiting.

High Street: Prohibition of Driving in Bus Lanes, No entry Except for Buses (Lower Section - Southbound & Northern Section - Both Directions), Prohibition of Loading, Designated Disabled Person's Vehicles Parking Places, Designated Taxi Parking Places, Designated Goods Vehicle Parking Places, Prohibition of Waiting.

King Street (Part): Prohibition of Driving, Prohibition of Loading, Prohibition of Waiting.

Mill Street (Part): Prohibition of Loading, Designated Parking Places at Pay and Display Machines, Designated Disabled Person's Vehicles Parking Places, Designated Motor Cycle Parking Places, Designated Coach Parking Places, Designated Goods Vehicle Parking Places, Prohibition of Waiting.

Pudding Lane (Part): Prohibition of Driving, Prohibition of Waiting.

As part of the proposals the existing Pelican Crossing currently located on King Street, Maidstone 20 metres east of its junction with the High Street will be removed. This will allow for the relocation of an existing taxi rank which is currently located on the south side of the High Street 30 metres west of its junction with the Gabriel's Hill.

The signalised junction located at the southern end of the High Street at its junction with Mill Street will be removed prior to the installation of a new pedestrian crossing at a point level with the south side of the junction of Mill Street with Bank Street.

Exemptions are provided in the Orders to enable a vehicle to wait with Police permission, for enabling work to be carried out in or adjacent to the roads affected by the proposals, for use by the emergency services and by any local authority or water authority and for access to off street facilities, car parking areas and vehicular accesses.

Copies of the Experimental Orders which shall come into operation on Friday 27th April 2012 for an experimental period of not more than 18 months, an explanatory statement and plan showing the extent of the proposals can be inspected during normal working hours at The Kent County Council Offices, Sessions House, County Road, Maidstone Kent, ME14 1XQ and at Maidstone Borough Council Offices, Maidstone House, King Street, Maidstone, Kent, ME15 6HQ.

Jacobs Engineering UK Ltd has been commissioned to work in partnership with The Kent County Council to collate views on the proposed measures during the experimental period. As previously stated, organisations or individuals affected by the proposals have a statutory right to make representations either in support or to raise concerns about the experimental orders during the first six months of its operation.

All representations regarding the proposals should be made during the period of the experimental order in writing to Diane Bourne, Jacobs Engineering UK Ltd, Miller House, Lower Stone Street, Maidstone, Kent, ME15 6GB or by email to diane.bourne@jacobs.com, quoting the name of the Order and reference No "B1742500".

THE INTERVIEW

Richard Darrah

Voyage back to the Bronze Age

A HALF-SIZED replica of Dover's Bronze Age boat takes to the water next month in a bid to help modern mariners get a better idea of the challenges that faced their ancient forebears.

The vessel is under construction in the grounds of the town's museum, where the original artefact is housed in a protective case.

The boat is believed to be some 3,600 years old and was discovered 20 years ago.

Since then, the vessel, which would have been used to trade between Kent and the Continent, has been a prized exhibit in the museum. However, this is the first time that an effort has been made to test out, as far as possible, how it would handle in the water.

A date of Saturday, May 5, has been set for the "shakedown cruise" off the Kent coast, but that is still to be confirmed.

Craftsman Trevor Marsden is working on the

A model of a 3,600-year-old boat unearthed in Dover is being taken out on a 'shakedown cruise' next month. Nick Ames learns more.

project. "We've all got our fingers crossed we can make that," he said. "I'm hoping to be part of the crew when we start the sea trials – it should be a very interesting experience."

Backing for the reconstruction has come from the Two Seas fund, which is supported by both Kent County Council and the European Union, along with the charitable fund established by former-Saga-owner-turned-millionaire-philanthropist Roger de Haan.

He said: "We have re-created it to half-scale, so it is around 30 feet long. The only things – along with the crew – that are full-sized will be the paddles, as trying to propel the craft with half-sized ones would be impossible.

"The original craft would have had a crew of around 20, maybe 16, rowers and a couple of people constantly bailing out water – we will have eight on board. It would have been used to trade items between communities, and the crew would also have the task of protecting their valuable goods.

"In good weather, a direct Dover to France crossing with favourable tides would have taken around four hours. But if tides were not advantageous, the crew would have found themselves taking 12 hours to cross.

"Longer voyages would see the boat hugging the coast and the crew beaching it at night, when provisions would be gathered."

As with the original vessel, timbers on the replica have been fitted together to form a hull and keel, with yew-stitching holding them firm. The ancient method of waterproofing with moss and beeswax has also been followed.

September 1990 was when the historic boat first saw the light of day after the Bronze Age, which lasted between about 5000BC and 2000BC.

It was uncovered as work was being carried out on a Dover subway that was constantly being flooded. A sump was dug out to drain off the water and it revealed a Medieval town wall, part of a Roman quayside and then the boat was archaeologists alerted to the first find delved further back through the ages.

The remains had been sealed in silt, preventing the spread of bacteria that would have caused the wooden hull to decay.

Trade routes in the Bronze Age can be traced by artefacts from different cultures being uncovered away from their places of origin.

It is likely that the Dover to France route was one of the most popular, by virtue of its short distance, despite the often dangerous tides.

Others would have seen goods from the Mediterranean, southern France and Spain coming to Britain via Brittany and ending up in Hampshire, Devon and Dorset, while both Dover and Thanet would have been the destination for items originating in Belgium, The Netherlands and Germany.

These would have been transported down European rivers to northern France and then across the Channel.

A shipwreck uncovered by divers in 1974 at Langdon Bay, close to Dover, gives a good idea of the goods that would have been carried.

Items brought to the surface dated from the later part of the Bronze Age and were of design and workmanship associated with tribes living in ancient France.

A boat of the period could have taken about three tonnes in cargo, which could have included stone for building, livestock, clothing, jewellery, pots and pans, cups and weapons such as swords, daggers, spears and axes.

Darrah said: "The same sort of communities would have existed on both sides of the Channel by the coast and evidence suggests they were richer than those further inland.

"We cannot say for certain, but it is possible that, as well as the crew, the boat may have carried a priest-like figure on board. It would have been believed he could help to ensure the success of the voyage.

"Trade would most likely have been run as a tribal monopoly, with the skills in making and crewing the vessel being passed on through the generations."

Along with the original boat, Dover Museum contains artefacts from the period and replicas of the era's tools as well as a small life-sized re-creation of a hut, with human figures and livestock.

This is one waggon that I'll be happy to jump on again

GLOSSIPPING over a drink with a long-lost friend meant it was easily half an hour before we looked at the menu on Saturday night, but our waitress at the Waggon at Hale's restaurant was perfectly happy to let us get on with things... even if that meant that by the time we were finally ready to order, the larger table next to us had also made their choices.

Such bad timing on our part had little effect on the wait for our food, though, with my trio of prawns (£5.95) and my guest's breaded Camembert (£5.25) arriving in perfect time.

My guest selected easily the best of the starters, three perfectly-sized rounds of melting Camembert, with cranberry compote and mixed salad leaves that were polished off in seconds and finally managed to end our chatter.

The prawns were equally as delicious, coming with a sweet chilli dipping sauce and salad – the menu told me I was getting tempura, filo and Japanese prawns. All three were delicious, but my one complaint of the night was that there was little to indicate which prawns were which.

Moving on to our mains, the 8oz rump steak with Jack Daniels glaze (£12.95) was cooked just to my guest's taste. Served up with chips and salad, this was a good-sized meal, with the tangy glaze an unusual but welcome twist.

My home-made fisherman's pie with seasonal veg (£9.75) was equally tasty. Smothered in a beautiful potato mash, the chunks of cod, salmon, smoked haddock and prawns infused with cheese, chilli and lemon were heaven, and as I found myself nearing my limits of fullness I was forced to leave some of the potato in favour of the succulent fish pieces.

Throughout the meal our waitress had been perfectly attentive, checking we were happy and chatting with us when we asked questions. Before we had even looked at the menu she had told us of the specials and apologised because the fillet of cod was off the menu that evening but that there was cod on the bar menu, from which we were welcome to order.

This great service, coupled with a modern but relaxed environment, meant we had no qualms about loitering over our drinks before tackling the dessert menu.

The New York cheesecake (£4.25) and chocolate-fudge cake (£4.50) were as delicious as you'd expect, only I'd been so greedy I was again forced to leave some of mine. Instead we relaxed over a couple of coffees as the waitress had assured us there was no hurry to leave.

Three courses of delicious food and a few drinks from the bar gave a total bill of £62.65.

Delicious food, a great environment and excellent service mean I'll definitely be returning to the Waggon, maybe to one of its many special events. A day visit will also be on the cards to meet the small menagerie in the beer garden, including a micro-pig called Crackling.

A year after its transformation, the Waggon at Hale has become a must-visit destination.

Old British tearoom is a return to tradition

A NEW tearoom with a traditional theme has been opened at one of Kent's leading tourist attractions.

The Salutation Tea Room has been unveiled at The Secret Gardens of Sandwich to be ready for the summer season.

Situated in the Old Gatehouse, it features many of the characteristics of the original tearoom and evokes the refined and elegant Edwardian pastime of 'taking tea'.

The quaint eatery will offer a selection of teas, coffees, luxury cakes and pastries for anyone looking for a traditional bite out in east Kent.

The Secret Gardens are encircled by the old town walls, blocking out noise and allowing for serenity in the middle of town.

Pantiles festival back for its second year

ONE of the newest additions to the county's culinary calendar is returning for a second year.

The Pantiles Food and Drink Festival is back at Tunbridge Wells on the weekend of May 19-20.

Supported by Produced in Kent and the county council, as well as by local business, last year's event attracted more than 15,000 people.

About 40 stalls have already been allocated, selling hot and cold food, fresh produce and alcoholic and non-alcoholic drink.

Four chefs from some of the area's most popular dining venues are lined up to display their talents in the demonstration kitchen.

The season to skip forth and savour

WITH spring now upon us, there is no place like the Garden of England when it comes to taking a ride out and having a fine meal.

With the evenings getting lighter by the day and the promise of an English summer just around the corner, now is the ideal time of year to sample the range of food and drink on offer in the county's pubs and restaurants.

Kent got its moniker from the huge variety of produce that farmers, fishermen and brewers have been able to bring to the market and then to the table.

Dover sole, Romney Marsh lamb and Kentish strawberries are just three of the world-class products that come straight from the county.

Then there are the top-class vegetables that spring from the fertile soils of our farms.

THE Grange in Ramsgate is being opened to the public to celebrate the 200th anniversary of one of its most famous inhabitants. The Grade I-listed house was designed and lived in by the influential and prolific 19th-century architect and designer Augustus Pugin and in 2012 there will be celebrations of his achievements to mark the anniversary of his birth. Visitors can see the library, where Pugin designed the House of Lords interiors. It is testament to his skill and influence that many of Britain's Victorian buildings look like The Grange, especially as Pugin built few domestic houses. He also began the construction of St Augustine's monastery next door. The Grange's £2.6 million restoration was completed by The Landmark Trust in 2006.

When life can be a drag... Raining Men

Woodville Halls, Gravesend
Thu to Sat, April 26-28
01474 337774
www.woodvillehalls.com

FOR three nights month it will be raining men in Gravesend as this cracking hit show comes to town.

As part of the theatre's new season of shows, Raining Men promises to give audiences a hilarious, sparkling, naughty evening, featuring music from the likes of Barbra Streisand, Shirley Bassey and Judy Garland.

Described as 'The Full Monty meets Priscilla, Queen of the Desert', the comedy show tells the story of three men: Doug the DJ, Colin the barman and Phil the bouncer. This is a night out that ladies won't want to miss – there'll be dancing in the aisles and unforgettable entertainment.

The comedy is strictly for adults, with strong language and content from the start. Group booking is available; buy nine tickets and get a 10th free.

Assembly Hall Theatre, Tunbridge Wells
Mon to Sat, October 22-27
01892 530613

THE world-renowned stage show Calendar Girls has been bagged by the Assembly Hall Theatre in Tunbridge Wells for later this year. Since opening at Chichester Festival Theatre in 2008, Calendar Girls has been an unprecedented success, playing more than 100 sell-out weeks across the country. It has become the most successful play to tour the UK, grossing more at the box office than the smash-hit film of the same name, with ticket sales in excess of £25 million.

The production features Birds Of A Feather's Lesley Joseph, EastEnders' Kacey Ainsworth, Emmerdale's Deena Payne and Hi-De-Hi actress Ruth Madoc. Tickets are priced from £18.50-£29.50.

Handel's Messiah The Merry Opera Co

Memorial Theatre, Broadstairs
Sunday, April 29, at 3pm
0845 2626263
info@sarahthorne-theatreclub.co.uk

AFTER its sell-out production of La Traviata in Broadstairs last month, Kent-based The Merry Opera Company will perform its moving and unusual staged production of Handel's Messiah.

The group tends to do things a little differently, moving away from traditions such as static soloists and huge choirs reading music. Instead, the show features a cast of just 12 singers and a lot more stage direction.

The production is expected to be of high quality, following the highly-rated La Traviata performances that attracted opera fans from across the county.

Tickets cost £10 in advance and £12 on the day.

Liquid laughs Al Murray's pub landlord

Quarterhouse, Folkestone
Wed and Thu, June 20-21
01303 858500
www.quarterhouse.co.uk

AL MURRAY will be serving up a new pint of comedy as he brings his new stand-up show to Folkestone's Quarterhouse for a two-date stop. Best known as his loudmouth alter-ego The Pub Landlord, Murray has become one of the most recognisable comedians in the UK.

Having had his own TV show as well as enjoying regular appearances on the panel circuit and a memorable stint in Hell's Kitchen, Murray is as popular as ever.

New show The Only Way Is Epic" will see the irrepressible innkeeper serving up his premier brew of ale-inspired acumen and bar-room buffoonery.

Tickets are priced at £15 and on sale now.

Make a splash with your own hot tub

FEW people would disagree that sinking into a tub of warm water is the best way to relax – and that is why hot tubs remain one of the top choices for people looking to add luxury to their home.

The Great British Home Show 2012 at Glow, Bluewater, will be devoting a section to hot tubs and swim spas, with technology that makes them easier than ever to maintain.

Show stands will be run by one of Britain's largest and most successful companies, The Pool & Spa Company, with experts on hand to show you how hydrotherapy hot tubs and swim spas work and offer advice on sizes and installation.

"A hot tub or spa is more than just an additional luxury in your home – it's part of a healthy focused lifestyle," said Nick James, event director for All About Brands, the company behind the show.

The Pool & Spa Company has won several national and European awards, including the Hydropool European Retailer Of The Year 2011, a 2010 UK Customer Service Award.

Its products range from the world's only self-clean hot tubs and swim-spas (endless pools), in-ground and indoor pool and leisure complexes, gazebos, cabins and buildings.

It also supplies and fits above-ground wooden, metal and splasher pools, saunas and steam rooms.

Joint venture leaves firms with warm glow of success

A PROJECT to cut residents' energy bills by almost 40 per cent has helped housing association AmicusHorizon and Swale Heating scoop a big national award.

The two companies joined forces to enter the Housing Innovation Awards 2012 and are celebrating winning the accolade for Most Innovative Refurbishment Project.

The winning entry involved a £3.8 million project to retrofit 100 homes with the latest technological eco-measures at Rushenden on the Isle of Sheppey.

Annual savings of some £500 per household are promised, a saving of almost 40 per cent on average fuel bills of £1,300.

Victoria Benson, regional asset director Kent for AmicusHorizon, said: "We're passionate about this exciting international project. Retrofit is all about reducing household bills, saving energy and reducing CO₂ emissions.

"Working with several specialist contractors, including Swale Heating, we have installed a range of measures and empowered residents to save even more energy by giving them practical skills.

"We chose Rushenden because it's an area facing economic challenges and fuel poverty, with three-quarters of its residents on either full or partial housing benefit.

"The four-year project started in 2010 and is backed by funding secured from the EU. The results will be shared with partners in England and Europe."

Swale Heating is a key partner in the scheme

SAVING: Each home could save £500 on fuel bills and the award win is a big boost during the company's 40th-anniversary celebrations this year.

Matthew Edwards, sales director, said: "We were up against tough competition in the final, but I knew that the strong partnership between us and AmicusHorizon made us a real contender.

"We are celebrating a major landmark in our company's development and success in these prestigious national awards is a fitting accolade for all we stand for."

VOLKSWAGEN'S original 1938 Beetle went on to sell 21.5 million units and be assembled in umpteen countries apart from Germany – but it was far from perfect.

However, in an era when people were pleased to have an affordable and distinctive car, it was a surefire winner.

When VW revived the look in the late 90s, though, we ended up with another Beetle far from perfect – in an era flooded with affordable cars.

After the initial nostalgic euphoria, many people realised the New Beetle just didn't look right. Sure the Herbie shape was there and even the vestiges of the original's running boards, but cabin space was wasted by a massive fascia and dashboard, while rear seating, headroom and boot space was piffling.

And somebody decided to add a flower vase to the fascia. Some say it was a penholder, but most people stuck a flower in it and that caused men to avoid buying the car, which was dropped in 2010.

The belated all-new replacement has reverted to the name Beetle, plain and simple – and distancing it from its flower-power predecessor.

The new-generation car doesn't need gimmicks, anyway, though VW-dealers will offer customising add-ons like those other retro stars, the Mini and Fiat 500.

It looks more like the original – again we get an echo of running boards – but there's more of a coupé look like the 1948 original Porsche, the 356, giving it unisex appeal.

Built on the latest Golf platform, it also handles properly and hints at potential hot models to come – a Beetle GTI perhaps?

If the exterior is cool yet retro, the cabin is a great partner; in this car, areas of exposed painted metal are a homage to the original – as is the flip-down glovebox lid – rather than corner-cutting, especially since the materials elsewhere are typically robust and quality VW.

The cabin is more practical this time; rear headroom is naturally restricted by the swooping roofline, but it doesn't feel claustrophobic, even if it is a four-seater.

The only black mark is the elasticated door pocket straps; retro perhaps, but they make it too easy to stuff something in the pocket only to see it exit through the gap below the strap.

In keeping with the sportier image, the entry-level engine is a turbocharged 105PS (104bhp) 1.2-litre petrol with VW's auto/manual DSG box.

Most people will be happy, as it should deliver an average mpg in the mid-40s. It's not speedy, but the engine revs satisfyingly and that gearbox is great for auto-changes in town or smooth manual shifts.

Diesels and a 2.0-litre petrol are in the pipeline, but I also liked the livelier 160PS (158bhp) 1.4-litre petrol engine at launch, which comes with a six-speed manual box.

Herbie rides again as VW's new Beetle echoes original charm

BACK AT THE START: VW's new-look Beetle does away with the quirkiness of the previous model and is a return to the styling that made it one of the most popular cars in the world

... those door straps, but there's not much to dislike about this latest incarnation of a classic – especially now the flower vase is gone.

... the car yet has the power options it needs to distance itself from its effete predecessor, but the omens are good for a future Beetle GTI.

... the more harmonious use of the original shape with a just a hint of Porsche coupé. It drives well and should get male buyers back onside.

Coupe with grace executed in style

By Sam Davison
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

FEW cars win plaudits when simply parked up, but the original 2005-10 Mercedes-Benz CLS four-door coupe was one of those rarities.

Having fallen for the car's swooping lines, it wouldn't have mattered to would-be buyers if it had handled like a sofa, with none of the comforts, though it was just as much a star on the move.

So fans may have viewed early images of this icon's replacement with trepidation; lacking the original's unbroken crease line from front wheel arch to tail, the new CLS looked a bit lumpy... less fluid.

Familiarity modifies that though, and there is a compensating aggression about the styling now, while the front is a marked improvement; after a week with the car and many admiring comments, I reckon it's just as much a head turner as its forebear.

The original created a sensation at a time when the once conservative German premium marque had already rocked the industry with some off-the-wall designs.

And though it proved a good seller and halo car for M-B, few rivals managed to attack it properly: VW's CC series is a cheaper equivalent, but lacks such badge cachet, while the recent Audi A7 offers racy looks too, plus a hatchback, but does that feature make it less prestigious than the Merc? Closest in looks and on-road presence, though, is probably the Jaguar XF.

In short, the Merc doesn't have much to rival it as a luxury four-seat, four-door gran turismo, although upmarket versions of its donor model – the Merc E-Class – might also be in the mix for some buyers.

The CLS is well-made and well-appointed, as you would rightly expect for a car starting at £46,860, but the eye-opener is quite how well key models perform versus the fuel they consume for their size.

COUPE DE GRACE: The new CLS looks different to its predecessor but it is sure to wow drivers

Even the 202bhp four-cylinder 2.1-litre diesel 250CDI is claimed to crack 62mph in just 7.5 seconds; our £53,495 263bhp V6 3.0-litre 350 CDI Sport model takes 6.2 seconds, yet these models are capable of a combined fuel consumption of 54.3 and 46.3mpg respectively – they also attract a relatively modest 18 per cent Benefit in Kind tax (BiK).

But then they do both wear M-B's Blue-Efficiency eco-branding, though this is overshadowed on the 350CDI Sport by big 19-inch AMG alloys and other accoutrements from M-B's famous sports styling house.

Of course, if you need livelier performance there are V6 and V8 petrol versions, including the £81,145 63 AMG flagship, but the fuel and BiK costs may be prohibitive even at this level of ownership.

Whatever the engine, it will be mated with a seven-speed automatic that is seamless in auto and allows smooth manual changes too via paddles mounted behind the steering wheel.

Would you want to? Hopefully, for the CLS is a sure-footed rear wheel drive beast that lives up to its coupe billing, cornering with a flat stance that will please keen drivers, even if the speed-weighted steering can feel a bit light at times.

Passengers won't mind it either judging by the supple yet precise sports suspension fitted to our car – a standard suspension and air suspension is also available, depending on the model.

Comfort levels inside are top-notch with well-shaped leather seats, though bear in mind that this is a strict four-seater, even if the rear pair are spoiled for space.

For this really is a beautiful car for four on a weekend getaway, helped by a big boot capable of swallowing all reasonable luggage.

So, put away any misgivings about losing the spirit of the original CLS – its successor has delivered the 'coupe de grace' with just as much cool.

Plug-in Prius is switched on TOYOTA has raised the stakes in the hybrid race by offering its pioneering Prius model with a plug-in variant, priced at £27,895 after adding the Government's £5,000 grant for lower-emission vehicles.

The plug-in facility allows owners and businesses to top-up the car's batteries overnight or at the office to increase electric-only operation, thereby cutting fuel costs and emissions.

Volvo's airbag for pedestrians

VOLVO'S eagerly-anticipated mid-size V40 premium hatchback arrives in late summer (from £19,745) and includes a diesel with emissions low enough to escape road tax, and an official combined fuel consumption of 78.5mpg.

This version also has the best Benefit in Kind taxation levels of any car in its class, while the range features the world's first pedestrian airbag.

New venture has six appeal

MAZDA has launched a high-spec special edition Mazda6 (from £21,000) available in hatchback or estate bodystyles.

The Venture includes TomTom navigation and integrated Bluetooth plus distinctive smoked alloys, sports grille, half-leather seats – heated in front – privacy glass and distinctive colours.

Dartford-based Mazda UK is sweetening the deal with zero and 5.9 per cent APR finance.

New-era Lexus gets county premieres

LEXUS dealers in Kent have previewed the Japanese premium brand's new model – one set to change the face of its line-up.

It's the latest generation Lexus GS mid-range executive saloon, to rival models like the BMW 5-Series, Audi A6 and Mercedes-Benz E-Class, and wearing what is tipped to be the new corporate nose of the Lexus line-up.

Existing and prospective Lexus customers in the county got an early look at the newcomer – which is due in June – when Motorline group dealerships Lexus Canterbury and Tunbridge Wells held VIP evenings last Friday and on Monday respectively, attracting almost 400 people.

Both events featured a jazz band, magician and prize draw to entertain guests, who were also given an expert tour of the car to explain its significant new developments.

Much was made of Lexus value: high-spec but aggressively priced compared with rivals.

Innovations include the standard-fit 12.3-inch full-colour LED screen – the world's widest in-car multimedia display – coated, self-cleaning side front windows for clearer and safer vision via the door mirrors.

All new GS models also come with heated and ventilated seats and increased boot space to rival the opposition: 522 litres, or 465 on hybrid models due to slight intrusion by the battery array. A top-notch 17-speaker Mark Levinson multimedia system is also available.

Paul Stapylton, brand manager for the two Kent sites, said: "Prices start from an attractive £32,995, bringing a lot of car for the money, but the other great thing about this new GS is that we have four distinct versions to appeal to a wide cross-section of customers.

"At the entry point there's the affordability of the GS250 petrol option, but there's also the GS450 petrol-electric hybrid drive, and we also have smart F Sport versions with either powertrain. It makes us confident that we can raise our GS sales by quite a margin compared with the outgoing car, and that means we can build on a successful year at our two sites, following the launch of our all-new entry car, the CT200h executive hatchback hybrid.

"That car delivered many conquest customers who wanted to drive eco but stay premium – many existing customers had already bought into that with our RX450h hybrid SUV, our other big-seller over the past year."

A mobility lifeline for the disabled

MOTABILITY has transformed the lives of disabled people and their families since its introduction in 1978.

Until then, only disabled people who could drive themselves received any Government help with transport.

This was usually a blue three-wheeler that was notoriously unstable and could only seat one – and therefore not much use for families.

With Motability, though, the disabled were able to use their Government Mobility allowance towards a vehicle of their choice – also removing the stigma of the blue 'invacar'.

Since then, some three million cars, scooters and powered wheelchairs have been sourced through Motability – a Government-backed charity – allowing disabled people to go shopping, do voluntary work, visit friends, go to the doctor, do sport, give a family member a lift, or go on holiday – all things the vast majority of the motoring public take for granted.

Some users have even been able to take up further education or pursue better jobs and careers, having been liberated hugely by their new-found mobility.

ON THE ROAD: Clockwise from top left... all types of vehicle are available to Motability, from practical family hatchbacks like the Mazda3 to funky crossovers like the Mitsubishi ASX and spacious MPVs such as the elegant Seat Alhambra

The scheme was modified earlier this year, though, to both streamline the procedures and prevent some misuse that had crept into the system.

The key points were:

- The list of cars available has been streamlined.
- Nominated drivers must live at or within five miles of the applicant's address, though special circumstances will still be considered.

- Drivers under 25 are restricted to cars with an insurance group of 16 or lower and with a power output of 115bhp or less, while those under 21 are only permitted to drive Motability vehicles where they live with the disabled customer.

Motability: did you know?

If you receive the Higher Rate Mobility Component of the Disability Living Allowance or the War Pensioners Mobility Supplement, you can apply for a Motability lease by exchanging part or all of that allowance.

Up to two nominated drivers can drive a Motability vehicle, but the disabled person qualifying for the scheme does not have to be one of them. The drivers may be friends or relatives, and parents or carers can apply on behalf of a child aged three years or older.

The car only has to be used for the benefit of the disabled person, such as for a shopping trip or collecting a prescription – they don't even have to be in the car. A third insured driver can be added for a small payment.

Motability is a worry-free package that includes:

- A choice of about 2,000 models of car
- Insurance, servicing and maintenance
- RAC breakdown assistance
- Road tax
- Tyre and windscreen replacement
- 60,000 mileage allowance over three years.

Many special adaptations are available free to help with: speed and steering, signalling and safety, stowage, and seating and access.

CHOICES: Three of a kind – cars that are spacious yet both compact and easy to manage... clockwise from top left are Kia Rio, Hyundai iX20 and Honda Jazz

Car dimensions vary. Seat height, door-opening angle and storage space for wheelchairs and equipment can all affect whether the car works for you and your particular disability or not, but your local dealer can take you through a questionnaire designed to ensure the car and Motabil-ity is right for you. The Motability package continues to the end of your three-year lease, with a seamless transfer to your new car.

Some 600,000 customers choose Motability and 97 per cent say that they would recommend the scheme to their friends.

FOOTBALL

Angel ace's Palace send-off as he flips out of game and rolls into gymnastics

By Greg Miles

greg.miles@archant.co.uk

LIFE after retirement is a common dilemma for sportsmen and women around the world, but that dilemma is made all the more serious when the end of your career is forced upon you as it was for Scott Gooding.

The Tonbridge Angels defender thought he had made the comeback from a serious knee injury, only to break down again just three games into his return over a year ago.

But after going through the heartache of realising his boyhood dream was ending, he has found a new direction in life - gymnastics.

While sidelined with injury as his team mates battle it out in the Blue Square South, the highest division the club has ever reached, he was busy studying so he could join his fiancée in opening up a new gymnastics club.

It's not the traditional road former non-league stars have taken, and Gooding admits his team mates delivered a certain amount of ribbing.

"I have been teaching them the forward rolls, and cartwheels," he said. "They have given me a bit of stick."

"We are going to open a gymnastics club and we have found a building that needs a refurbishment. It's a case of starting from scratch."

Before he starts taking lessons, there is the small matter of a testimonial to get out of the way, which will see the Angels take on Gooding's first club, Crystal Palace.

He is still in touch with a number of former team mates from Selhurst Park, including their current manager Dougie Freedman, whose children are taught gymnastics by his fiancée.

An Eagles XI will take on the Angels at Longmeadow on Wednesday in a 7.45pm kick off, thanks to the efforts of manager Tommy Warrilow and team mate Robbie Kemba whose dad Steve is a scout for the Championship side.

Gooding started at Palace as an eight-year-old and made two first team appearances, one in a friendly against Bastia in France, and his competitive debut as a sub in a Boxing Day clash at Millwall.

"For them to pull something like this out of the bag is unbelievable."

lievable," he said. "They look after you really well at Tonbridge. It should hopefully create a good crowd, and will be a good send off."

"Everybody has been absolutely unbelievable."

It wasn't an easy decision for the 30-year-old to hang up his boots, but doctors told him if he had a recurrence of the injury the only option would be to break his leg in order to fix it, as he had already had his knee ligaments replaced once.

"It was the hardest decision I have ever had to make," he said.

"I was really enjoying it, I was hoping to keep on going for a good few years at this level. It's hard to take."

"It's been a hard, hard time mentally for me."

"I don't feel like a different person, but it's made me a lot stronger mentally. It was really hard to go through."

When he got the news he felt there was only one decision to take.

"There's no point chancing it going again," he said. "I'm walking fine, running, cycling. I can do anything in a straight line, it's the twisting and turning part that's the problem."

Gooding signed for the Angels in 2006 from Gravesend & Northfleet, and left to join Fisher in November 2007, but returned to Longmead in 2008, where he was crowned player of the season for the 2008/09 season.

He also played for AFC Hornchurch and Crawley Town.

Sibling rivalry revs up as Brands gets set to welcome truck racing champs

THERE can't be many sports in the world where you have three brothers performing at the top level.

But British Truck Racing is one that does with the Powell brothers, John, Graham, and Steven, who all hail from Kent.

This weekend John who lives in Herne Bay and Steven, from West Kingsdown, will be at Brands Hatch for the second round of their respective classes in the Delphi British Truck Racing Championship, while Graham will be busying himself at the European Championship this season.

Steven who during his working week is busy pulling pints and working the tables at his pub the Portobello Inn, is making his first step into the A class this season.

Although all the trucks are restricted to 100mph, the change in class represents a jump in engine power from 600hp to 950hp, which he admits has been making him a bit nervous.

"I have had a few sleepless nights about it," he said. "It's going to be a learning curve."

"The aim is to get it up to scratch this season, and go for the championship the season after."

"Brands Hatch is probably the most stressful one because we have so many people come and watch us. I don't get nervous at any other races."

Steven made the leap into racing after his brother Graham challenged him several years ago.

"My dad used to do it when it first started about 28 years ago and then my brother Graham bought one," he said.

"We used to go along to race meetings and then we were sat in here (Portobello Inn) one night and he dared me to give it a go."

"So I bought a truck and I've been doing it for about five years now and it's been brilliant fun."

"I never expected to end up as Class B Champion. The first lorry I had wasn't the quickest so I bought my brother's old one and we had three really good seasons before we nicked it last season."

"My sponsors have bought me a new truck and a new engine and now all we're waiting for is a new clutch. With everything we've done, fingers crossed it will all fall into place."

"This could be a testing weekend for us, but hopefully we'll have it all nipped in the bud for when we come back (at Brands Hatch) in November."

Clifford cautious as Kent seek to build on good start

By Greg Miles

greg.miles@archant.co.uk

THE notion that money doesn't buy success is one that fellow sports clubs would do well to take note of.

It's a realistic approach to business that Kent chief executive Jamie Clifford has been championing during the two years of his tenure at the St Lawrence, and one that he hopes isn't lost on the supporters.

And even though Jimmy Adams' side has started in a positive manner after a draw against Yorkshire, and a resounding victory over Northamptonshire, Clifford is wary of setting targets.

"I think bold statements of ambition are easy to make and often just wrong," he said. "I don't think money buys success, it's not all about your spending power, it comes back to the individual players wanting to be the best players, and trying to achieve that," he said.

"I think there is a danger in setting a goal. Every club is trying to get promoted and they are trying to have a run in the knockout competitions."

If supporters haven't already seen, they will no doubt notice big changes at the ground as Kent host Gloucestershire in their first home game of the season this week.

The housing project is in its final stages, while the Sainsbury's Local store opened several weeks ago, and the administration block which will be home to the new club offices is weeks away from completion.

But some supporters haven't welcomed parts of the project.

"We will always get people saying this is outrageous, but you have got to see the whole context," he said. "We have to be realistic, the housing has funded the redevelopment and Sainsbury's is a long term tenant."

"The Sainsbury's site is there and it's fairly visible, it's not like it's 20ft high neon lights on the front gate.

"We had to find solutions to running the club. It's not easy finding corporate sponsors, and getting people to commit to a season long membership, it has been hard, it is the same for everybody."

Hythe hoping to claim third scalp in Kent Senior Cup final HYPHE Town are gunning for glory against Dartford in their first Kent Senior Cup final for decades.

Scott Porter's side haven't been in the competition, let alone anywhere near reaching the final in recent years.

But this season they have surpassed all expectations knocking out Blue Square Premier, and Blue Square South sides Ebbsfleet United, and Dover on their way to the final.

And a third high profile clash for Hythe against another Blue Square South side doesn't phase Porter as he insists the pressure is on the opposition.

"Obviously it's going to be a tough game, they are two leagues above us and flying high," he said. "We have had a couple of good scalps on the way."

"The difference in wage structure and players is massive, but it was against Dover and Ebbsfleet. We have got nothing to lose and they have got everything to lose."

"We haven't been in it for 20 odd years because of the league we have been in, so it's the first attempt in those years and we are in the final.

"Our aim was to finish as high as we could in our first season in the league, and we have held our own."

"It has been a great season, we are proud of what we have done."

The game kicks off at 7.45pm on Tuesday at Dartford's Princes Park ground.

McLaren work helping to boost Jackson's career

MOTORBASE'S Mat Jackson believes his work with McLaren away from the touring car scene is helping to improve his career.

Jackson who races for the Kent based team had a mixed round at Donington last weekend, where he took the first race, and finished third in the second, and looked to have rounded off a brilliant weekend with a win in the third.

But after finishing first his result was later excluded after officials discovered his car had exceeded the permitted turbo boost limits.

Jackson has conceded that rules are rules and is keen to move on to the rest of the season.

"There is a long way to go, a lot of things can happen," he said.

Between rounds, as he is this weekend, before travelling to Thruxton at the end of the week, he works as a development driver for McLaren and was this week testing their new road car, while also working closely with the F1 setup.

And it's that kind of exposure and driving practice which he feels can help his season ahead.

"It certainly hasn't hindered me," he said. "It's certainly something

WINNER: Jackson on podium twice that has helped in a lot of ways.

"It's good to keep your mind alive and sharp, which you cannot always do on a race weekend."

"I have been doing it now for four years. In a way it becomes just another car. Not many times do you get to drive around in a car that has got the prestige of McLaren."

"Some days you do think 'is this really happening?'"

"Everyday is different, it's interesting and great to be part of the project."

Heroism is not what it was “IT'S possible you never expected to read the words "Dermot O'Leary" and "startling insight" in the same article, let alone the same paragraph, but earlier this year he produced a genuinely revealing interview with Thierry Henry on the concept of heroism.

As a television presenter who normally deals exclusively in the vacuous, O'Leary confessed that while Henry was his hero, he was at an age where he couldn't worship footballers any more, and the player agreed saying statues should be for war heroes.

Yet if you're of a certain age and follow Ashford, Dover, Hythe, Folkestone, Maidstone, or Margate the chances are that a former Royal Marine called Frank Ovard will be one of your heroes.

I've no idea what his military record was but as a footballer he was a complete one-off, capable of dribbling his way around an entire team.

He had the talent to play professionally, but his only spell in the Football League ended in failure because Gillingham wanted him to conform to their system, which was a bit like hiring Jimi Hendrix and constricting him to play three chords.

Yet what he's arguably most remembered for is an ability to "earn" penalties.

As soon as he entered the penalty area Ovard simply dragged one across the other and collapsed in a heap. He made Ashley Young look like Willem Defoe in the film Platoon, somehow staying on his feet even though he'd been shot so many times he looked like a garden sprinkler.

Ovard had a reputation and yet a staggering number of referees still awarded him penalties in his career.

What's striking now is that nobody ever seemed to mind. Young, like Henry, has been pilloried for diving and yet when Ovard hit the deck it only ever seemed to provoke knowing laughter from the team he was playing for and eye-rolling resignation from the opposition.

One reason is because he usually only played in front of a few hundred fans and while it's possible there might be some television footage of him locked in a vault somewhere, there's no readily available visual evidence - which sadly means there's also no footage of some of the great goals he scored.

Another is that although he dived he didn't compound the crime by furiously instructing the referee to send the innocent defender off.

Perhaps this is because he didn't take football that seriously (although it's said he once punched a hole through a wooden door after losing a Kent Senior Cup tie).

As the man himself once said, when reflecting on the end of his career: "I still went down. I just took longer to get up."

I can still admire great players but I'll never think of them in the way I thought of Ovard. And as I'm the same age as O'Leary that's probably just as well.
